MacArthur Boomed as Keynoter

Eisenhower Backers Are Undecided Whether to Fight Move to Pick General

Taft Camp Agrees

Other Names Proposed for Main Posts During GOP Convention

Chicago, June 9 (AP)—Backers of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower appeared divided today on whether to fight a move to name Gen. Douglas MacArthur as keynoter of the Republican National Convention.

Supporters of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Eisenhower's chief rival for the GOP presidential nomination, seemed agreed on a slate which would put MacArthur, Rep. Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, National Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson and Sen. William Knowland of California in key convention posts.

Unless plans are changed at the last minute, the Taft backers may ask the convention arrangements committee tomorrow to choose MacArthur as the keynoter without his having to assume the duties of temporary chairman. Usually the keynoter, who makes the first major speech of the convention, also is temporary chairman.

Vital Post

The temporary chairman passes on part of the procedure by which the convention votes on the seating of contested delegations. Gabrielson, who opens the convention here July 7 as national chairman, might be designated to continue as the temporary gavel wielder.

Gabrielson has taken no part in the pre-convention presidential nomination campaign and thus might be one of the few with neutral views available to rule on what promises to be a bitter floor fight over the disputed Texas delegation.

Martin, House minority leader, also has not been identified with either major presidential candidate and seemed in line for selection as permanent chairman.

Knowland won reelection to the Senate in the June 3 California primary by taking both the Republican and Democratic Party nominations.

In recognition of this feat he may be offered the chairmanship of the convention platform committee. He is a severe critic of the Truman administration's Far Eastern policies but has supported military aid to European allies.

Knowland is backing the presidential nomination bid of Gov. Earl Warren of California.

He Has Open Mind After Talk With Ike

New York, June 9 (AP)—Gov. John Fine of Pennsylvania, after a three-hour talk with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, says he still has an open mind about Republican presidential hopefuls.

Fine adds that it may be some time before he reaches a decision, which presumably may guide 32 officially uncommitted delegates from his state to the GOP convention.

The governor and the general met here yesterday at the Eisenhower residence on the Columbia University Campus. Eisenhower is on leave from his post as president of Columbia.

With the Republican convention less than a month away, Eisenhower in his bid to win the nomination has meetings scheduled here this week with delegates from 15 Atlantic seaboard states.

Representatives of New Hampshire, Connecticut, Delaware and Massachusetts open the sessions this morning.

Yesterday's Eisenhower - Fine conference took on considerable importance because the 32 officially uncommitted Pennsylvania delegates constitute, by themselves, a voting block bigger than entire delegations from many states.

Fine said yesterday that Pennsylvania's 70 regular and 70 alternate delegates have been invited to meet the general next Friday at Eisenhower's farm, near Gettysburg, Pa.

However, the governor said he does not expect the meeting to result in any definite action in support of either Eisenhower or his chief opponent, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Pennsylvania delegates, Fine said, will meet with Taft at a similar meeting to be arranged later. The governor said Taft had requested such a gathering.

In addition to the 32 officially uncommitted Keystone state regular delegates, 20 have been reported favorable to Eisenhower, and 18 to Taft.

Van Fleet Declares 8th Army Ready For Red Offensive

Seoul, Korea, June 9 (AP) — Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today the U.S. Eighth Army is ready, alert and fit to meet any Red offensive in Korea.

The commander of the United Nations fighting machine said its morale "is high—almost to a point of wishing the enemy would attack."

"The Eighth Army is ready, alert and fit to meet any offensive which the enemy may foolishly decide to launch," Van Fleet told a news conference. "That effort would be defeated."

The general said the Eighth Army's supplies, particularly ammunition, are in good condition.

He has said several times the Reds in Korea have built up their artillery until they have more guns available than the United Nations.

Million Reds Ready

U.S. military authorities have estimated the Communist potential striking force is approximately a million men, about 500 tanks and self-propelled guns, and 1,800 planes.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, top Communist delegate at the Panmunjom armistice talks, recently warned that the Red army would not stand idly by while the United Nations command "slaughters" prisoners of war on Koje Island.

Officers in charge of the UN prison camp island have blamed violence there solely on Red POWs.

Ground and air action continued to pick up slightly on the western front.

Hold Chinese Four Hours

UN defenders again Monday beat off Chinese who have been trying since Saturday to win back a hill position they lost west of Chorwon.

Between 100 and 125 Chinese assaulted the point for four hours, moving within hand grenade range and using artillery and mortar fire in a followup to a futile double assault Sunday. The Reds pulled back in the early morning darkness Monday, however, and continued to lob artillery shells on the position through the day.

Four allied patrols fought long actions Sunday night and Monday morning northwest of Yonchon, south of Chorwon.

An allied unit on the central front reported killing 32 Reds Monday in the Pukhan river area.

U. S. Air Force and Marine pilots concentrated on close support strikes Sunday night.

Soviets Checking Runaways to West

Allies Set to Retaliate for Violation of Rights in Berlin

Berlin, June 9 (AP)—Border patrols reinforced by Soviet soldiers checked the flight of East Germans to the West today as surrounded West Berlin waited apprehensively for the next squeeze of the tightening Communist vise.

The British continued their reprisal siege of Russia's Radio Berlin headquarters inside the city's western sectors. Allied patrols were barred by Russians again today from Berlin's lifeline highway to West Germany.

But the Russians still evaded Allied attempts to force them into joint discussion of recent harassments.

Three more zonal border crossings were reported closed between East and West Germany. This would leave the Helmstedt-Berlin autobahn as Berlin's only supply route.

Allied officials said today, however, they could find no basis for these rumors. Both road and rail traffic from West Germany to Berlin continued to flow normally.

Discuss Situation

The three western Allied commandants in Berlin — British, American and French—held a special meeting today to discuss the troubled situation.

U. S. high Commissioner John J. McCloy said in a television interview last night that the Allies "will respond vigorously to any violation of our rights" in Berlin.

West Berlin newspapers, gloomily predicting that the worst is yet to come in the Soviet squeeze, have appealed to the Allies for a precise definition of the western powers' security guarantee of Berlin as a deterrent to further Russian harassments.

Conclude Treaty

Tokyo, June 9 (AP)—Japan and India today concluded a peace treaty, the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs announced.

Truman Requests Senate to Hold Up Action on Dispute

Washington, June 9 (AP) — An agreement running perhaps two years to mid-1954 appeared near today in the steel strike.

Negotiators representing the industry and striking CIO Steelworkers Union were reported on the verge of compromise that would give the workers a boost in wages and other benefits worth about 22 cents an hour per man.

Reflecting the government optimism, President Truman sent a letter to the Senate saying "we may be on the verge" of a settlement. He pleaded that the Senate take no action in the dispute lest it "upset the present bargaining situation."

Several proposals aimed at the dispute are pending in the Senate as amendments to legislation to extend the wage-price controls program.

A source close to the peace talks in the White House told a reporter that today's meeting of the three-man negotiating teams representing both sides was "likely to be crucial, with a 'yes or no' answer."

Fifth Day of Meeting

This source said Union President Philip Murray probably will get some form of the union shop, an arrangement under which all the industry's workers would have to pay union dues.

This is the fifth straight day of negotiations which John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman, described as "earnest bargaining." It looked like the parties were determined to reach an agreement.

A two-year contract deal, besides solving the present crisis and restoring vital steel production, would insure peace in the industry for a long time to come.

It would be another step in the recent trend of writing long-term labor-management pacts. Most automobile companies are now operating under five-year agreements negotiated in 1950.

16-Cent Boost

An agreement on the basis of a 22-cent package would probably give the workers a 16-cent hourly boost in earnings now averaging close to $2 an hour. The additional five or six cents would be in

U. S. Keeps Close Watch in Korea For Germ Warfare

Communists Are Reported Ready for Microbe Use But Fear Strike-back

Washington, June 9 (AP)—The Communists have had germ weapons ready for at least 15 years, according to their own claims, but so far have not dared use them, even in their Korean aggression.

A close and constant watch is maintained by United States biological warfare experts on the battlefront and rear areas in Korea.

To date, there has been no evidence that the Reds either have used or have in the Korean war zone the equipment for bacteriological warfare (BW), a spokesman for defense department scientists said today.

He disclosed, in answer to a reporter's question, that a report of a suspected bacteriological warfare plant in North Korea had proved unfounded.

Why haven't the Communists resorted to microbe warfare?

The answer, top American military men say, is that the United States is prepared to strike back with the same weapon in overwhelming power.

Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett pointed this up recently. In a news conference he denounced Communist charges that the United States had used both BW and toxic gas weapons in Korea as "abominable, malicious falsehood." He added that the Communist technique usually has been to charge someone else in advance with a crime the Communists propose to commit, he posed the question: Does the Communist charge mean they propose to try that kind of warfare? And he concluded by saying "if they do, they'll lose just the same—they'll wish they had never been born."

Lovett Says U. S. Ready

Lovett left no doubt that the United States was ready to meet that kind of game. Behind his words stands a big BW laboratory plant in Maryland and a BW proving ground in Utah.

To back up information obviously gleaned from other sources showing that the Kremlin started preparation for germ warfare long ago, American officials cite speeches by Soviet officials.

Among them is one made on Feb. 22, 1938, by Marshal Voroshilow, at that time Commissar of Defense.

Voroshilov said if toxic of bacterial weapons were used against the U.S.S.R. "we are prepared and fully prepared to use them also and to use them against aggressors on their own soil."

American officials are wary of telling what is known of Soviet preparations for BW. To hint at what is known would be to endanger the source of intelligence and the lives of agents.

$150,000 Fire

Ausable Chasm, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—A $150,000 fire last night destroyed the restaurant and souvenir shop at the entrance to Ausable Chasm, long a popular tourist attraction. Firemen attributed the cause to defective wiring.

Trucks Are Halted at 3 Entrances; Meeting 7:30 for Action

Residents in the vicinity of the dump off Pine Grove avenue in the center of Kingston blocked trucks for several hours this morning in protest against the dump as a "fire and health menace."

The group, composed largely of women, began picketing about 8 a. m. and broke up about 10:30 a. m. when Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk arrived with Max J. Oppenheimer of the Board of Public Works, Alderman Martin W. Golden of the 9th Ward and Police Lieut. James P. Martin.

Residents blocked all three entrances to the dump, Susan street, Valley street and South Sterling street.

Ed Demski of 72 Pine Grove avenue, spokesman for the group, said that residents in the vicinity of the dump "want this cleaned up as a health menace," saying that women and children "get sick to their stomachs from the smell." He said that "you can see rats running across the street.

Says Sign Ignored

He said that the group felt it had legal ground for complaint because garbage and combustibles were among the materials being placed in the dump. He called attention to a sign which forbade the dumping of garbage and combustibles and said that the order was being ignored by city dump trucks.

Demski said that a protest meeting would be held in the backyard of his home at 7:30 tonight and that Attorney William Kaercher had been obtained as counsel.

Mayor Newkirk said that it was against regulations to dump garbage and combustibles and that he was certain that city trucks were not to blame. He advised residents to report any violations immediately and that action would be taken.

Won't Tolerate Garbage

"I won't tolerate garbage," the mayor said.

Demski asked if the dump couldn't be placed somewhere else, perhaps outside the city, but Mayor Newkirk pointed out that it had to be on city land. "For a city of 30,000 Newkirk said, "that's all that is exposed." He pointed to a single bank where trash had been dumped, explaining that the rest of the city dump was being covered with earth as it was filled in.

Demski expressed the view that land within city limits could not be used for dumping but Newkirk shook his head. "A municipality can dump on any city land," he said. The mayor expressed regret to residents that they had to suffer the inconveniences of a dump so

Restrictions Cut On Down Payment For New Houses

3-Point Program Ready for Wednesday in Purchases of Homes

Washington, June 9 (AP) — The government today relaxed its restrictions on how much you must pay down to buy a new house.

Under the new program, effective Wednesday, purchasers will be allowed to make down payments 20 to 50 per cent less than those now required under Regulation X, which has been in effect nearly two years.

On the least expensive houses, down payment requirements were cut in half. On the most expensive, they were reduced 20 per cent.

The relaxed controls program means that only 5 per cent will be needed in down payments on some houses and that the maximum required will be 40 per cent.

What Order Does

The action was announced today by the Federal Reserve Board. Here is what the board order will do:

1. On house costing $7,000 or less, 5 per cent down payment will be required; it had been 10 per cent.

2. On houses costing $25,000 or more, 40 per cent will be required; it has been 50.

3. On houses between those figures, a sliding scale fixes requirements at a sum between 10 and 40 per cent of the sale price.

The order applies only to new housing, that is, private residence built since October, 1950, when Regulation X went into effect.

There were no controls on houses built before the effective date of Regulation X.

Mortgage Limit Same

Time limits for paying off mortgage credits were not changed. The maximum period for paying off mortgages on houses costing less than $12,000 remains 25 years; on higher priced properties, 20 years.

The only exception permits veterans to have a longer period if the Veterans Administration finds that a shorter pay-off period would cause hardship.

With home construction already booming toward the mark of one million houses this year, a level topped only twice in the past, officials expressed doubt the easier terms would do much to stimulate construction.

The new terms were expected, however, to make it easier for many people to buy and sell houses, especially the more costly ones.

Easier for GIs

Proposals Made During Meeting Saturday of Residents in Lower Esopus Sector

Six Points Set

Petition Is Going to All County Areas Hit by High Waters

A proposed state-wide flood control program was developed at a meeting of residents of the lower Esopus creek flood area on Saturday night.

The program will be incorporated in a petition to be circulated among all Ulster county flood area residents and then presented to state legislators.

The proposal would require that new dams erected on brooks, streams and rivers of the state be constructed so that water in storage can be maintained at 95 per cent or less of capacity and that any excess above that figure due to heavy rainfall be reduced within four days "in a safe and judicious manner."

Existing reservoirs, according to the proposal, would be required to hold their storage at 90 per cent or less of capacity and to discharge any excess within seven days of a heavy rainfall.

Six Point Program

The full program consisted of six points, outlined by Charles Rinschler, secretary of the flood group, to the 57 persons who attended the meeting Saturday night at the Town of Ulster highway department garage. John M. Walker, chairman, presided at the meeting.

Those present adopted the proposed program and voted to employ an attorney to draw up a petition containing the six points recommended.

The petition will be circulated among area residents of the county. It will also be discussed at a future meeting of the flood victims, at which officials of the city of Kingston and the towns of Hurley, Ulster, Marbletown, Olive, Saugerties and Rosendale will be invited. It was also moved and adopted to have a committee consult with State Senator Arthur Wicks in an attempt to further the program.

For All of State

The recommendations as read Saturday night were intended for state-wide adoption. The six points are these:

1. Any and all barriers including weirs, dams and reservoirs, erected on brooks, streams and rivers of New York state shall henceforth be constructed in such a manner that the water in storage will never exceed 95 per cent of capacity except during and immediately after precipitation, after which the level of water will be reduced to less than 95 per

Call Gems Return Answer to Prayers

New York, June 9 (AP)—"The crowns are returned . . . the Blessed Mother has heard our prayers. A miracle has happened."

Msgr. Angelo R. Cioffi's words yesterday suddenly brought joy to the congregation at Brooklyn's Roman Catholic Votive Shrine of Regina Pacis.

They summed up the impact caused by the theft from the shrine nine days ago of two jem-studded gold crowns, valued at $150,000 and insured for $100,000; and they told of the strange return of the gems yesterday by special delivery mail. The crowns were part of a mural in the shrine, dedicated to the Virgin as Queen of Peace.

Worshippers applauded. Two women fainted. Others wept tears of joy. There was no doubt; the jewels were back. The priest held them aloft for all to see.

True, they were slightly bent and about 20 jewels worth between $2,000 and $3,000 were missing. But the crowns had returned—the crowns blessed by the Pope, the crowns for which many of the worshippers had contributed family jewels.

Msgr. Cioffi, who had gone to the altar as soon as a postman delivered the gems just at the start of the 10 a. m. Mass, repeated a promise he made last Sunday: To "forgive and forget" the thieves.

". . . I offer complete forgiveness," he said. "All I wanted was the return of the crowns."

But police apparently were not ready to forget the theft. The brown Manila envelope, in which the crowns were mailed with only cardboard for protection, was rushed to headquarters for laboratory checks.

Stolen Jeweled Crowns Returned

Msgr. Angelo R. Cioffi, pastor of Brooklyn's St. Rosalia Roman Catholic Church, holds boxes containing two gem-encrusted gold crowns valued at $150,000 which were returned in the mails after being stolen from the Regina Pacis Votive Shrine. Maria Rose Bapalia, 92, a parishioner, expresses delight at their return. Crowns disappeared May 31 from the shrine which had been erected by St. Rosalia parishioners.

Says Religion-Science Tie Can Heal World Conflict

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—The Rev. Alfred B. Starrett, chaplain of Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio, says only the combining of religion and science—"love and knowledge"—will heal the world conflict between the east and the west.

Starrett, in a baccalaureate sermon at Vassar College yesterday said that men embrace communism because of faith in the scientific method alone and "trust that the Communist rulers use that method in a valid way."

He added that science without the love arising from religion "becomes a purposeless technique which destroys those who use it." But Starrett said that men cannot live by love alone, "for without the scientific method and the intelligent use of knowledge men become pious sentimentalists paving hell with their good but effective intentions."

Starrett, who was a professor at Huachung University in China in 1948 when the Communists took over, said the Communist belief in the authority of the scientific method is able to convince men's minds and produces "a dedicated discipline that is seldom matched in the west."

He said that, when he returned to the United States in 1949, anyone holding this view of communism's power arising from its appeal as a doctrine was labeled a Communist or a liar or a fool.

The popular view of a large group in the U. S., Starrett said, then "was that communism is a system in which the rulers are motivated only by a lust for power and everyone else is motivated by sheer terror."

Washington, June 9 (AP)—The Communists have had germ weapons ready for at least 15 years, according to their own claims, but so far have not dared use them, even in their Korean aggression.

A close and constant watch is maintained by United States biological warfare experts on the battlefront and rear areas in Korea.

To date, there has been no evidence that the Reds either have used or have in the Korean war zone the equipment for bacteriological warfare (BW), a spokesman for defense department scientists said today.

He disclosed, in answer to a reporter's question, that a report of a suspected bacteriological warfare plant in North Korea had proved unfounded.

Why haven't the Communists resorted to microbe warfare?

The answer, top American military men say, is that the United States is prepared to strike back with the same weapon in overwhelming power.

Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett pointed this up recently. In a news conference he denounced Communist charges that the United States had used both BW and toxic gas weapons in Korea as "abominable, malicious falsehood." He added that the Communist technique usually has been to charge someone else in advance with a crime the Communists propose to commit, he posed the question: Does the Communist charge mean they propose to try that kind of warfare? And he concluded by saying "if they do, they'll lose just the same—they'll wish they had never been born."

Lovett Says U. S. Ready

Lovett left no doubt that the United States was ready to meet that kind of game. Behind his words stands a big BW laboratory plant in Maryland and a BW proving ground in Utah.

To back up information obviously gleaned from other sources showing that the Kremlin started preparation for germ warfare long ago, American officials cite speeches by Soviet officials.

Among them is one made on Feb. 22, 1938, by Marshal Voroshilow, at that time Commissar of Defense.

Voroshilov said if toxic of bacterial weapons were used against the U.S.S.R. "we are prepared and fully prepared to use them also and to use them against aggressors on their own soil."

American officials are wary of telling what is known of Soviet preparations for BW. To hint at what is known would be to endanger the source of intelligence and the lives of agents.

$150,000 Fire

Ausable Chasm, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—A $150,000 fire last night destroyed the restaurant and souvenir shop at the entrance to Ausable Chasm, long a popular tourist attraction. Firemen attributed the cause to defective wiring.

Trucks Are Halted at 3 Entrances; Meeting 7:30 for Action

Residents in the vicinity of the dump off Pine Grove avenue in the center of Kingston blocked trucks for several hours this morning in protest against the dump as a "fire and health menace."

The group, composed largely of women, began picketing about 8 a. m. and broke up about 10:30 a. m. when Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk arrived with Max J. Oppenheimer of the Board of Public Works, Alderman Martin W. Golden of the 9th Ward and Police Lieut. James P. Martin.

Residents blocked all three entrances to the dump, Susan street, Valley street and South Sterling street.

Ed Demski of 72 Pine Grove avenue, spokesman for the group, said that residents in the vicinity of the dump "want this cleaned up as a health menace," saying that women and children "get sick to their stomachs from the smell." He said that "you can see rats running across the street.

Says Sign Ignored

He said that the group felt it had legal ground for complaint because garbage and combustibles were among the materials being placed in the dump. He called attention to a sign which forbade the dumping of garbage and combustibles and said that the order was being ignored by city dump trucks.

Demski said that a protest meeting would be held in the backyard of his home at 7:30 tonight and that Attorney William Kaercher had been obtained as counsel.

Mayor Newkirk said that it was against regulations to dump garbage and combustibles and that he was certain that city trucks were not to blame. He advised residents to report any violations immediately and that action would be taken.

Won't Tolerate Garbage

"I won't tolerate garbage," the mayor said.

Demski asked if the dump couldn't be placed somewhere else, perhaps outside the city, but Mayor Newkirk pointed out that it had to be on city land. "For a city of 30,000 Newkirk said, "that's all that is exposed." He pointed to a single bank where trash had been dumped, explaining that the rest of the city dump was being covered with earth as it was filled in.

Demski expressed the view that land within city limits could not be used for dumping but Newkirk shook his head. "A municipality can dump on any city land," he said. The mayor expressed regret to residents that they had to suffer the inconveniences of a dump so

Restrictions Cut On Down Payment For New Houses

3-Point Program Ready for Wednesday in Purchases of Homes

Washington, June 9 (AP) — The government today relaxed its restrictions on how much you must pay down to buy a new house.

Under the new program, effective Wednesday, purchasers will be allowed to make down payments 20 to 50 per cent less than those now required under Regulation X, which has been in effect nearly two years.

On the least expensive houses, down payment requirements were cut in half. On the most expensive, they were reduced 20 per cent.

The relaxed controls program means that only 5 per cent will be needed in down payments on some houses and that the maximum required will be 40 per cent.

What Order Does

The action was announced today by the Federal Reserve Board. Here is what the board order will do:

1. On house costing $7,000 or less, 5 per cent down payment will be required; it had been 10 per cent.

2. On houses costing $25,000 or more, 40 per cent will be required; it has been 50.

3. On houses between those figures, a sliding scale fixes requirements at a sum between 10 and 40 per cent of the sale price.

The order applies only to new housing, that is, private residence built since October, 1950, when Regulation X went into effect.

There were no controls on houses built before the effective date of Regulation X.

Mortgage Limit Same

Time limits for paying off mortgage credits were not changed. The maximum period for paying off mortgages on houses costing less than $12,000 remains 25 years; on higher priced properties, 20 years.

The only exception permits veterans to have a longer period if the Veterans Administration finds that a shorter pay-off period would cause hardship.

With home construction already booming toward the mark of one million houses this year, a level topped only twice in the past, officials expressed doubt the easier terms would do much to stimulate construction.

The new terms were expected, however, to make it easier for many people to buy and sell houses, especially the more costly ones.

Easier for GIs

Proposals Made During Meeting Saturday of Residents in Lower Esopus Sector

Six Points Set

Petition Is Going to All County Areas Hit by High Waters

A proposed state-wide flood control program was developed at a meeting of residents of the lower Esopus creek flood area on Saturday night.

The program will be incorporated in a petition to be circulated among all Ulster county flood area residents and then presented to state legislators.

The proposal would require that new dams erected on brooks, streams and rivers of the state be constructed so that water in storage can be maintained at 95 per cent or less of capacity and that any excess above that figure due to heavy rainfall be reduced within four days "in a safe and judicious manner."

Existing reservoirs, according to the proposal, would be required to hold their storage at 90 per cent or less of capacity and to discharge any excess within seven days of a heavy rainfall.

Six Point Program

The full program consisted of six points, outlined by Charles Rinschler, secretary of the flood group, to the 57 persons who attended the meeting Saturday night at the Town of Ulster highway department garage. John M. Walker, chairman, presided at the meeting.

Those present adopted the proposed program and voted to employ an attorney to draw up a petition containing the six points recommended.

The petition will be circulated among area residents of the county. It will also be discussed at a future meeting of the flood victims, at which officials of the city of Kingston and the towns of Hurley, Ulster, Marbletown, Olive, Saugerties and Rosendale will be invited. It was also moved and adopted to have a committee consult with State Senator Arthur Wicks in an attempt to further the program.

For All of State

The recommendations as read Saturday night were intended for state-wide adoption. The six points are these:

1. Any and all barriers including weirs, dams and reservoirs, erected on brooks, streams and rivers of New York state shall henceforth be constructed in such a manner that the water in storage will never exceed 95 per cent of capacity except during and immediately after precipitation, after which the level of water will be reduced to less than 95 per

Call Gems Return Answer to Prayers

New York, June 9 (AP)—"The crowns are returned . . . the Blessed Mother has heard our prayers. A miracle has happened."

Msgr. Angelo R. Cioffi's words yesterday suddenly brought joy to the congregation at Brooklyn's Roman Catholic Votive Shrine of Regina Pacis.

They summed up the impact caused by the theft from the shrine nine days ago of two jem-studded gold crowns, valued at $150,000 and insured for $100,000; and they told of the strange return of the gems yesterday by special delivery mail. The crowns were part of a mural in the shrine, dedicated to the Virgin as Queen of Peace.

Worshippers applauded. Two women fainted. Others wept tears of joy. There was no doubt; the jewels were back. The priest held them aloft for all to see.

True, they were slightly bent and about 20 jewels worth between $2,000 and $3,000 were missing. But the crowns had returned—the crowns blessed by the Pope, the crowns for which many of the worshippers had contributed family jewels.

Msgr. Cioffi, who had gone to the altar as soon as a postman delivered the gems just at the start of the 10 a. m. Mass, repeated a promise he made last Sunday: To "forgive and forget" the thieves.

". . . I offer complete forgiveness," he said. "All I wanted was the return of the crowns."

But police apparently were not ready to forget the theft. The brown Manila envelope, in which the crowns were mailed with only cardboard for protection, was rushed to headquarters for laboratory checks.

Stolen Jeweled Crowns Returned

Msgr. Angelo R. Cioffi, pastor of Brooklyn's St. Rosalia Roman Catholic Church, holds boxes containing two gem-encrusted gold crowns valued at $150,000 which were returned in the mails after being stolen from the Regina Pacis Votive Shrine. Maria Rose Bapalia, 92, a parishioner, expresses delight at their return. Crowns disappeared May 31 from the shrine which had been erected by St. Rosalia parishioners.

Search Abandoned

London, June 9 (AP)—Search has been abandoned for Air Vice Marshal David F. W. Atcherley, 48, one of Britain's famous "flying twins," who disappeared Saturday on a jet flight from Suez to Cyprus. The Air Ministry said search by British, U. S., Turkish and Israeli air force places had failed to turn up a trace of Atcherley, the RAF commander in the Suez canal zone. Atcherley and his twin brother Air Vice Marshal Richard Atcherley commanded night fighter squadrons in World War 2. Their progress through the ranks of the RAF had matched step by step. Richard now commands a fighter group in England.

Lieut. Col. Milliken at New U.S. Air Bases on Greenland

Featured On Collier's Cover

In explaining the cover of this issue, Collier's states that it departs from its usual cover design by adding to the upper right-hand corner a picture of the U.S. Air Force Lieutenant Colonel A. E. Milliken, in sheer good spirits, waving a confederate flag deep within the Arctic Circle. It announces the first exclusive text-and-picture report about Allied defense bases on Greenland's icy wastes.

Colonel Milliken's particular duties are in the performance of liaison work between the Air Force and the Army Corps of Engineers, which is the construction agency for the Air Force. This comprises the very necessary construction of the runways and the many buildings which go to make up an air base, and without which the Air Force could not conduct its strategic and tactical missions. Naturally, the attempt is always made to get as near the potential enemy as possible, hence the increased interest in the Arctic during the past few years. This involves many new types of construction and many new problems.

The colonel has been a member of several expeditions exploring unknown territory in the extreme north of Greenland and was the Air Force project officer on the construction of our latest Arctic base in the northern part of Greenland.

Colonel Milliken, who has been visiting his family, expects to return to this extremely interesting work on what may be called the last frontier—at least it is the last one where the most primitive conditions are still encountered.

The story in Collier's is by Bill Davidson and the photographs are by Lew Merrim.

Charged With Entering United States Illegally

A Dutch citizen who allegedly entered the United States illegally in 1948 was arrested on Saturday in Woodstock by Sgt. Arthur A. Reilly of the State Police B.C.I. and has been turned over to the U. S. Department of Immigration and Naturalization.

Nelis Urybury, 21, was held at the Ulster county jail on a vagrancy charge until he was delivered to the custody of Inspector E. A. Kaler of the U. S. Border Patrol. He faces possible deportation proceedings, it was learned.

Sgt. Reilly said Urybury, alias Henry Freeman, was accused of entering this country illegally at Hoboken, N. J., on June 15, 1948, after leaving the ship on which he worked. Urybury then was employed as a handyman in several sections of the country, coming to Woodstock about two weeks ago, Sgt. Reilly said. The young man's home is in Rotterdam, Holland.

Murphy Attends Four-Day State Fire Convention

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy of Kingston returned Saturday from a four-day convention of the State Association of Fire Chiefs in Binghamton.

Murphy reported a very interesting convention with special emphasis on the place of the fire department in civil defense.

An impressive demonstration of high capacity fog nozzles was described by Murphy, who said that six pumpers at a water source pumped for a short distance to six other pumpers. The second battery of pumpers relayed the water to six fog nozzles, three on each of two aerial trucks, with one deluge gun set on the ground. He said that the total delivery for one minute was estimated at more than 5,000 gallons.

Frank Love of Painted Post was elected president of the Association, succeeding Irving D. Merrick of Poughkeepsie. Other officers elected were: Chief Lewis Mosher of Elmira, first vice president; Chief Lee Hunt of Middletown, second vice president, and Henry F. Drake of Clinton Corners, secretary-treasurer.

Financial and Commercial

By RADER WINGET

New York, June 9 (AP)—Stocks were a trifle higher today in a quiet market.

Railroad issues displayed the most activity and some of the best gains.

Throughout the entire list the advance carried up by fractions to around a point. Losses were scattered and small.

Steels held steady as did utilities, chemicals, aircraft and radio-television issues. Motors were narrowly mixed. On the higher side were rubbers, distillers, non-ferrous metals, oils, and air lines.

Higher prices were paid for Illinois Central, Northern Pacific, Standard Oil (N. J.), Kennecott Copper, Dow Chemical, National Distillers, Philco and Johns-Manville.

Curb exchange stocks were higher today. Moving ahead were Colonial Airlines, Humble Oil, Lone Star Gas, and Singer Mfg.

Corporate bonds were quietly firm. U. S. governments moved narrowly in the over the counter market.

Vukovic Exhibit To Open June 13

Woodstock, June 9—The second exhibition of the season at the Town House will open Friday, June 13, with a one-man show of paintings by Mark Vukovic. Most of the landscapes and still lifes to be included in the exhibition have been painted within the past year, and none of them have ever been shown here before. His most recent one-man show in this village was at the Town House in August, 1950.

A native of the little village of Liska, Dalmatia, Vukovic came to this country in 1911. While living in New York he studied at the National Academy of Design, the Art Student League and the Beaux Arts.

His first one-man show was held at the Dudensing Galleries in 1928, winning the attention of the leading New York critics. The New York Post reported that "Paintings by Mark Vukovic impress one by their sincerity, their vehement attack and their power to find something of dramatic interest in the homely scenes of everyday life." The New York Times said: "Why, you exclaim, these pictures are as dramatic as Veronese—though expressed in much homlier idiom . . . plastically and pictorially the canvases are alive. Vukovic seems to have an essentially dramatic outlook."

After coming to Woodstock in 1945, through his friend the late Emil Ganso, he received the Kleinert Award here. Prior to coming to Woodstock, Vukovic had been a professional photographer in New York where he had photographed many radio celebrities.

His Midtown Galleries, the Pennsylvania Academy, the Newark Museum, the Rochester Memorial Museum, the Whitney Museum and other galleries. In 1949 he participated in one of the regional artists series of one-man shows at the Albany Institute of History and Art.

Compared to Gauguin, the New York Sun observed that his painting at the Midtown Gallery group show "shows a decoratively arranged Bathing Party that somehow carries a vague hint of a Gauguin—a tamed and properly Americanized Gauguin."

His works have been acquired by the Willard Parker Hospital, Johnson City, the Newark Board of Education, the Franklin K. Lane High School, Briggs Memorial Hospital and the State Teachers College at New Paltz.

Lieut. Col. Milliken at New U.S. Air Bases on Greenland

Featured On Collier's Cover

In explaining the cover of this issue, Collier's states that it departs from its usual cover design by adding to the upper right-hand corner a picture of the U.S. Air Force Lieutenant Colonel A. E. Milliken, in sheer good spirits, waving a confederate flag deep within the Arctic Circle. It announces the first exclusive text-and-picture report about Allied defense bases on Greenland's icy wastes.

Colonel Milliken's particular duties are in the performance of liaison work between the Air Force and the Army Corps of Engineers, which is the construction agency for the Air Force. This comprises the very necessary construction of the runways and the many buildings which go to make up an air base, and without which the Air Force could not conduct its strategic and tactical missions. Naturally, the attempt is always made to get as near the potential enemy as possible, hence the increased interest in the Arctic during the past few years. This involves many new types of construction and many new problems.

The colonel has been a member of several expeditions exploring unknown territory in the extreme north of Greenland and was the Air Force project officer on the construction of our latest Arctic base in the northern part of Greenland.

Colonel Milliken, who has been visiting his family, expects to return to this extremely interesting work on what may be called the last frontier—at least it is the last one where the most primitive conditions are still encountered.

The story in Collier's is by Bill Davidson and the photographs are by Lew Merrim.

Charged With Entering United States Illegally

A Dutch citizen who allegedly entered the United States illegally in 1948 was arrested on Saturday in Woodstock by Sgt. Arthur A. Reilly of the State Police B.C.I. and has been turned over to the U. S. Department of Immigration and Naturalization.

Nelis Urybury, 21, was held at the Ulster county jail on a vagrancy charge until he was delivered to the custody of Inspector E. A. Kaler of the U. S. Border Patrol. He faces possible deportation proceedings, it was learned.

Sgt. Reilly said Urybury, alias Henry Freeman, was accused of entering this country illegally at Hoboken, N. J., on June 15, 1948, after leaving the ship on which he worked. Urybury then was employed as a handyman in several sections of the country, coming to Woodstock about two weeks ago, Sgt. Reilly said. The young man's home is in Rotterdam, Holland.

Murphy Attends Four-Day State Fire Convention

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy of Kingston returned Saturday from a four-day convention of the State Association of Fire Chiefs in Binghamton.

Murphy reported a very interesting convention with special emphasis on the place of the fire department in civil defense.

An impressive demonstration of high capacity fog nozzles was described by Murphy, who said that six pumpers at a water source pumped for a short distance to six other pumpers. The second battery of pumpers relayed the water to six fog nozzles, three on each of two aerial trucks, with one deluge gun set on the ground. He said that the total delivery for one minute was estimated at more than 5,000 gallons.

Frank Love of Painted Post was elected president of the Association, succeeding Irving D. Merrick of Poughkeepsie. Other officers elected were: Chief Lewis Mosher of Elmira, first vice president; Chief Lee Hunt of Middletown, second vice president, and Henry F. Drake of Clinton Corners, secretary-treasurer.

Financial and Commercial

By RADER WINGET

New York, June 9 (AP)—Stocks were a trifle higher today in a quiet market.

Railroad issues displayed the most activity and some of the best gains.

Throughout the entire list the advance carried up by fractions to around a point. Losses were scattered and small.

Steels held steady as did utilities, chemicals, aircraft and radio-television issues. Motors were narrowly mixed. On the higher side were rubbers, distillers, non-ferrous metals, oils, and air lines.

Higher prices were paid for Illinois Central, Northern Pacific, Standard Oil (N. J.), Kennecott Copper, Dow Chemical, National Distillers, Philco and Johns-Manville.

Curb exchange stocks were higher today. Moving ahead were Colonial Airlines, Humble Oil, Lone Star Gas, and Singer Mfg.

Corporate bonds were quietly firm. U. S. governments moved narrowly in the over the counter market.

Most of the landscapes and still lifes to be included in the exhibition have been painted within the past year, and none of them have ever been shown here before. A native of the little village of Liska, Dalmatia, Vukovic came to this country in 1911. While living in New York he studied at the National Academy of Design, the Art Student League and the Beaux Arts.

His first one-man show was held at the Dudensing Galleries in 1928, winning the attention of the leading New York critics. The New York Post reported that "Paintings by Mark Vukovic impress one by their sincerity, their vehement attack and their power to find something of dramatic interest in the homely scenes of everyday life." The New York Times said: "Why, you exclaim, these pictures are as dramatic as Veronese—though expressed in much homlier idiom . . . plastically and pictorially the canvases are alive. Vukovic seems to have an essentially dramatic outlook."

After coming to Woodstock in 1945, through his friend the late Emil Ganso, he received the Kleinert Award here. Prior to coming to Woodstock, Vukovic had been a professional photographer in New York where he had photographed many radio celebrities.

His Midtown Galleries, the Pennsylvania Academy, the Newark Museum, the Rochester Memorial Museum, the Whitney Museum and other galleries. In 1949 he participated in one of the regional artists series of one-man shows at the Albany Institute of History and Art.

Compared to Gauguin, the New York Sun observed that his painting at the Midtown Gallery group show "shows a decoratively arranged Bathing Party that somehow carries a vague hint of a Gauguin—a tamed and properly Americanized Gauguin."

His works have been acquired by the Willard Parker Hospital, Johnson City, the Newark Board of Education, the Franklin K. Lane High School, Briggs Memorial Hospital and the State Teachers College at New Paltz.

Truman Sends Message To Jewish Area Parley

South Fallsburg, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—President Truman told the annual convention of Brith Abraham yesterday that Americans are determined to protect themselves from aggression "and know that no nation is strong enough to do so alone."

Therefore, he said in a message to the American Jewish fraternal order, the United States has joined with other countries "which share our belief in individual worth as the essential value of democracy."

"With them," Truman said, "we are building the only kind of security which is real—collective security.

"Through the United Nations we are building a world in which man's oldest aspiration will eventually be recognized—the aspiration for lasting peace and universal justice. . . ."

Truman's message was read by Grand Master George O. Arkin.

More than 700 delegates, representing 311 lodges throughout the country, were present for the opening session of the three-day convention.

Promise on Jap POWs Is Called Propaganda

Tokyo, June 9 (AP)—A report that Russia would repatriate 182,000 Japanese prisoners "if Japan concludes a separate peace treaty with Russia" was written off today by the foreign office as "just more Soviet propaganda."

The report was received in a message from Hong Kong signed by Mrs. Tomi Kora, a Japanese Parliament member who last week signed in Peiping a "people's trade agreement" with Red China. The Japanese government has termed the pact worthless.

A spokesman for the government repatriation board said the Russian news agency TASS on April 22, 1950, reported that only 2,467 World War 2 Japanese prisoners were held. He added:

"The Japanese government has a confirmed report that 340,585 Japanese have not returned from Russia and Red China. Of the total, 234,151 are believed dead. The remainder of 106,434 may include more dead people. Mrs. Kora's figure of 182,000 is unthinkable."

Report Vandalism After He Queries Ike on Hiss

New York, June 9 (AP)—A physician who stirred up Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's news conference Saturday has reported to police that the two glass front doors of his home were smashed and a can of fertilizer was tossed into his residence.

Dr. Emanuel M. Josephson, 57, said he discovered the vandalism when he returned to his East 69th street home Saturday night.

Josephson caused a disturbance earlier in the day at the Eisenhower news conference, asking the Republican presidential aspirant why he had associated himself with Alger Hiss.

There were some shouts of protest. Eisenhower flushed. Then the general said he had seen Hiss only once, at the offices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Hiss, a government official and former president of the Foundation, is serving a federal prison term for perjury in denying that he passed official secrets to a Soviet spy ring in the 1930s.

AMERICANS NEED TO BE ALERT

Enterprising groups interested in keeping America alert to danger might do the country a service by preparing a sort of five-foot shelf of books and other materials which expose how Communists really operate.

There has been an extraordinary growth in the last year or so in the documentary evidences of Communist activity. Forunately a high proportion of it appears wholly reliable.

Some prime examples are Whittaker Chambers' autobiography, "Witness," Herbert Philbrick's story of his double life as Communist Party member and FBI agent, and the current series in the Saturday Evening Post on the espionage activities of Klaus Fuchs, German-born British atomic scientist who gave the Russians the atom bomb.

No catalog of first-rate materials in this field would be quite complete without a copy of the new American film, "Walk East on Beacon," which presents in an unadorned, straightforward manner not only Communist methods but FBI techniques in tracking down Red spies in an actual case.

If thinking Americans could take advantage of all these materials, they would be in a far better position to judge the nature and extent of the Communist threat within our borders.

They would be clear on one important fundamental which now is clouded in confusion. That is that the spy and the policy-influencer are seldom — if ever — the same. All the things which a man has to do to influence policy, openly advocating pro-Soviet views, sabotaging American attitudes, are calculated to arouse suspicion of him. The good spy is in the business of not arousing suspicion.

Klaus Fuchs is a perfect example. He was a Communist, with definite convictions. At first he kept the fact quiet in his adopted Britain because he saw it as a handicap to his developing career as a scientist. But once he began spying for Russia, he had a better reason.

Fuchs became almost a model for a scientist working on a secret wartime project. He not only did nothing to stir suspicion. He aligned himself—not too ostentatiously—with those who were "tough about security." He usually spoke against releasing classified information to the public.

This pose helped make him a perfect "sleeper"—a spy whose habits are so circumspect that he virtually never draws attention. A spy net functions best with a host of sleepers. Alger Hiss was one.

That's why character testimonials in the Hiss trial and similar proceedings are really beside the point. Of course the spy can produce men to attest to his character. He would not be a spy if he could not. If he went around arousing everybody's suspicion, spouting Soviet propaganda and the like, his usefulness to a potential enemy would be zero.

The policy-influencer has his role, too, but it is a distinct one. Those who see the two roles, as interchangeable are simply ill-informed about Communist methods. They need to read the five-foot shelf of documentary materials. They do not know the enemy—or where he might be found.

So-called "fast time" in some sections of the country always seems to come at a season when things get done more slowly.

Bach, Kant, Goethe and Beethoven were Communists, says the Eastern German Culture Bureau, a Communist organization. This extraordinary statement is meant to win the allegiance of the German rank and file. As Germans are generally well informed about their great men of the past, they will probably be moved to laughter. Goethe, in particular, was a conservative and a cosmopolitan who would have viewed Communism with contempt.

The House Judiciary Committee has decided to take no legislative action on baseball and fans can now breathe a bit easier. Baseball is confronted with many problems which have resulted from the fact that the national pastime is not only a sport but is also a big business. There are some who see legislation as the only answer to these problems; others see only danger to the game in governmental intervention.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

The broader implications in the Supreme Court's ruling in the Steel Seizure Case will be apparent as the years pass, for this decision has reversed the political trend of the past two decades. It has restored congressional government; it has returned the President to his proper place in our political system.

As the immediate cause for so revolutionary a decision was a labor case, the effect is liable to be a restoration of direct collective bargaining between management and labor with a decreasing participation by government. Here, also, a trend is being reversed.

Since the organization of the NRA (1933), the tendency in this country has been toward a Fascistic labor relationship, that is, management organized into trade associations, labor organized into national trade unions, with the government as the determing factor. This concept is not unlike Mussolini's syndicates. The Wagner Act and the National Labor Relations Board were the instrumentalities of this congealing arrangement.

The hope of both labor and government was that their procedures would so equalize the political strength of the unions that industry would never be able to use economic power in a conflict with the workers. Roosevelt sought to achieve a balance of power between labor and industry. The planners of this relationship were Sidney Hillman and Lee Pressman.

The Taft-Hartley Act was designed to place upon labor greater social and political responsibility. This act, to be fully effective, needs amendment giving the unions wider authority to discipline their members. For instance, today an anti-Communist union cannot expel a member for criminal subversion; a member can only be disciplined for non-payment of dues. With a few amendments of this character, the Taft-Hartley Act can be made more workable.

However, none of these laws can ever be a substitute in a free economy for direct collective bargaining between management and labor. The present trouble in the steel industry, although it gives the appearance of being over wages and benefits, is really over altogether another question, namely, the distribution of the increased cost of production due to a wage increase.

The conflict here is over the government's power under the law to control prices. Bernard Baruch in three wars now has called attention to a fundamental economic principle: when the law of supply and demand is abandoned because of a war situation, wages, prices, rents, interest, profits have to be controlled simultaneously and on a strictly non-political basis. This has never been done because presidents are politicians. The result, particularly during World War II and during the Truman Administration, has been economic chaos.

Mr. Truman has wanted to raise steel wages without raising steel prices, except as provided for in the Capehart amendment. Had the matter been handled by direct collective bargaining, without the intervention of government, the problem might have been solved within the margins available. As, however, the Wage Stabilization Board has the power to decide what wages and prices should be, as directed by the President, then collective bargaining amounts to little more than an acceptance and confirmation of the government's decisions.

That some elements among labor are beginning to grasp the dangers of government intervention is apparent from the joining of James P. Shields, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in the Steel Seizure Case as an amicus curiae in opposition to the government's position. The railroads had been seized by the government and held for almost two years. Now that the railroads have been returned, the increase in wages amounts to what the workers could have obtained before they struck.

The steel workers did not anticipate that they would have to undergo the kind of strike they now face. They had put their dependence upon the White House in the hope that a strike could be averted. The Supreme Court decision has nullified the power of the White House to use the weapon of seizure and the White House has only the Taft-Hartley Act to use, which neither Truman nor Phil Murray wishes to invoke. Unless Congress can be got to pass another act, the steel union finds itself in as unpleasant a situation as steel management.

And it all could have been avoided by the classical method of collective bargaining which the more conservative labor leaders, such as John L. Lewis or David Dubinsky, employ. The Fascistic trend, which commenced with NRA, may disappear, even before the Election, from labor relations.

HEART AND BLOOD VESSELS

Some years ago a friend called me up and asked me if I could do anything for his 12-year-old boy who was in bed with heart disease. I asked him what his doctor had called the disease and he replied endocarditis, or inflammation of lining of heart. I told him that I knew of no cure for this disease and treatment was what the boy was receiving, that was, complete rest in bed. Today, just as diabetes and pernicious anemia can be controlled, so can our physicians' control, in fact cure, endocarditis with the antibiotics (the sulfa drugs).

In the Chicago number of Medical Clinics of North America, devoted almost entirely to heart and blood vessels diseases, Dr. G. E. Wakerlin, Professor of Physiology, University of Illinois College of Medicine, states, "Cardiovascular disease (heart and blood vessels) is now the first cause of death in the United States (and Canada), accounting for approximately one-half of all deaths or three times as many as cancer which is the next major cause. As is well known, arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries), hypertension (high blood pressure) and rheumatic fever are responsible for 90 per cent of the cardiovascular diseases seen by the physician.

From the above figures it readily can be seen that heart and blood vessel disease is our physicians' greatest problem. "When cardiovascular disease is conquered, medical science and practice will have achieved its most important milestone on the goal toward maximum health, happiness and productivity for the middle and old age groups."

In investigating the causes of the various types of heart and blood vessel diseases, specialists in various fields have contributed articles touching on the rhythm of the heart beats, coronary sclerosis, congestive heart failure, electrocardiography, X-rays, causes of hardening of the arteries, the low fat diet for prevention of hardening of arteries, care of rheumatic heart disease patients, pitfalls in treatment of heart disease, and a study plan for the general practitioner in the diagnosis and treatment of hypertension (high blood pressure).

With these various groups of investigators at work some of whom are now able to give full time to this special but most important branch of medicine, it is probable that some day many valuable lives will be saved by their efforts.

"Yer Out---Batter Up!"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The King Committee, which has done a remarkably good job of probing tax frauds, is about to wind up its career on June 30. Before doing so, however, it has explored—very gingerly—the tax returns and business operations of one of its own members.

This is almost unheard of in Congress. Members of the House and Senate for the most part follow an unwritten rule that they do not pry into each other's business. Nevertheless, the King Committee has done some quiet probing of its own members—none other than Congressman Eugene Keough, Democrat, who is elected from plebeian Brooklyn but lives on swank Park avenue.

It happens that this columnist has kept a weather eye on Congressman Keough during the past two years and his record is interesting.

Keough was elected to Congress in 1938, but for 11 years he took no appreciable interest in Spain. His career in Congress featured a plan to send the Congressional Record to federal judges and to grant free postage to the armed forces. Not one speech did he make on Spain.

Then suddenly, after 11 silent years in Congress, Keough suddenly became the champion of Dictator Franco. He littered the Congressional Record with statements and editorials favorable to Spain. He interrupted congressional debates to defend Spain. He offered an amandment to include Spain in Marshall Plan handouts.

Franco Lobbyist

This began in 1949. It was in 1949 also that Congressman Keough was seen frequently in the company of Franco's lobbyist, amiable, likeable Charles Patrick Clark, who now draws $100,000 annually from the Spanish Embassy though in 1949 he drew only $50,000.

On Oct. 8, 1949, Congressman Keough paid a visit to Dictator Franco in Madrid in company with another Franco enthusiast, Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine. Lobbyist Charles Patrick Clark was in Madrid with them.

Traveling on a Spanish train that night, Congressman Keough was reported to have had $5,000 stolen, together with his pants. when he hung the pants too near a window in a sleeping car.

Prior to 1949, also, Congressman Keough opposed the natural gas lobby and voted against the Rizley Bill which would have hiked gas rates. The bill would have meant higher gas bills to the Brooklyn housewives who elected him, and he voted for the housewives.

But in 1949, Keough and Charley Clark, lobbyist for a gas pipe line company, as well as for Spain, had become friendly and Keough reversed himself. He not only followed the gas lobby's line during hearings in committee but actually introduced two amendments which would have made the Kerr Bill just as strong as the Rizley Bill which he had previously voted against.

After failing to strengthen the bill, and probably to protect himself with Brooklyn housewives, Keough finally voted "No" on final passage.

Fees for Tax Case

At about this time, Congressman Keough began to receive a series of checks from lobbyist Charley Clark. They were listed as payments by Clark for legal advice on a tax case which the federal government had against Silas E. Chambers of Miami. The first check was dated March 6, 1950, for $1,500; another on March 24, 1950, was for $1,000; April 5, $500; May 3, $500; and June 15, $1,000.

The interesting thing was that Keough, as a member of Congress, had no business accepting a law fee in connection with a tax case. Such law practice against the federal government by a member of Congress is illegal.

In September, 1950, some months after the checks had passed, I handed the information to the Justice Department, whereupon both Keough and Clark were quizzed by the FBI.

Immediately the congressman wrote a letter to Clark, dated Oct. 31, 1950, which appeared to be aimed at alibiing his transaction. It stated:

"I have given further consideration to the propriety of my continuing to act as advisory counsel. Therefore, if it meets with your approval, I should ask you to consider that our firm has withdrawn and consider that the fee which you previously paid us will be in full."

When the congressman and lobbyist Clark were interviewed by this column regarding the purpose of these fees, they told different stories.

According to Keough, Clark had merely dealt with his New York law firm, Halpin, Keough, and St. John, not with him. But when Clark was asked how Keough had earned these fees he explained that Keough had given very helpful advice.

"Then it was Keough who advised you on this case?" Clark was asked.

"Yes."

A short time later, the King tax fraud committee of which Keough is a member, rightly reprimanded ex-Congressman Vincent Quinn of New York for taking fees in connection with tax cases while he was a member of Congress.

Lost His Pants

"How did Keough happen to lose his pants in Spain?" I asked Clark.

"He hung 'em too near the window," Clark explained. "Someone pulled them out at a railroad station. But he only had $2,000 in his pocket—not $5,000 as reported in the press. They'd collected some money to pay for the importation of autos, and Keough was going down to the port to arrange for it.

Congressman Keough in turn was asked why he happened to support legislation which lobbyist Clark was interested in.

"I don't think I should comment," he replied.

"Why have you made so many speeches favoring Spain?" Keough was asked.

"I don't think I've had much to say about Spain," he countered. Reminded that the Congressional Record was full of his speeches, he declined to comment.

Asked about the reversal of his position regarding natural gas after Clark got into the picture, the congressman said he preferred not to go into the arguments of the gas legislation but he didn't see anything inconsistent in his position.

Questioned about the fees he had received from Clark's law firm in connection with the Silas Chambers tax matter, Keough at first replied that a lawyer's relations with his client are strictly private. Later he claimed—counter to what Clark said—that Clark's relations were with his law firm, not with him.

That is part of the record of a member of the King committee now probing tax frauds. It will be interesting to see if the King probers proceed with their investigation of their own member.

New Germany Eager to Join in Peace Move Is Revealed in Talks With Bonn Leaders

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Bonn, Germany, June 9—Lengthy talks here with officials of the government and the leaders of the opposition parties, as well as with High American officials, tend to crystallize agreement on at least one point—the new Germany of today is far different from the old and would like to take its place in the society of nations as a full-fledged, sovereign member willing to accept its share of the obligations of a peaceful Europe.

This correspondent talked privately with President Heuss of the Federal Republic, with Chancellor Adenauer and members of the government coalition, with Dr. Schumacher, opposition leader, and with various members of his party, as well as with trade-union spokesmen, and the two cabinet members in charge of finance and economics. Impressions gained from these conferences may be summarized thus:

1. There is deep appreciation of what the United States has done to help past-war Germany, and Chancellor Adenauer went so far as to say that history would record that, by helping Europe to its feet, America has done one of the most generous acts in the whole chronicle of human society.

2. There is unrest among the masses due to unsettled economic conditions and poor housing, as many of the bombed areas have not yet been restored. This sentiment is being exploited by political demagogues and can lead to a distortion of German foreign policy by clever manipulators of campaign strategy who know how to emphasize domestic issues at the expense of foreign questions. The present government majority is slender, and the elections next year are feared by the government members of parliament as likely to go against them unless the economic situation is then well in hand.

3. Germany as a whole has been persuaded by American indoctrination activities and by the terrible defeat administered in the war that dictatorship and militarism lead to war. The basic feeling in Germany against war almost approximates pacifism. It is felt that everything short of appeasement should be tried to bring about an agreement with Soviet Russia.

4. The same sentiment that is exhibited by the French Socialists exists here in the opposition Socialists—that there must be an effort to negotiate with Russia in a four-power conference, if for no other reason than to satisfy public opinion in Germany that every means of achieving peace by negotiation has been exhausted.

5. Unless there is some recognition of this underlying sentiment—which may or may not have been intensified by Communist intrigue—the European defense treaty will not be ratified here except with reservations that safeguard the German viewpoint on rearmament.

6.—Rearmament is being fought by Socialists as a roadblock to domestic progress and better housing—somewhat the same line that Bevan and the British Socialists take. It is an argument that can only be met by demonstrating again and again that the real roadblock to peace is being erected by Soviet Russia.

7.—If Germany eventually participates in a European defense plan, it will have to be under circumstances that grant her more freedom of action as a sovereign nation than a continuation of her existence as virtually an occupied country.

8.—The presence of 18,000,000 Germans in the Soviet zone of East Germany is a sobering influence on many West Germans, who honestly fear that the establishment of several German divisions, even in a European defense army, will provoke Russia and harden the Soviet attitude toward the return of East Germany to the nation.

9.—There is no danger of any Russian-German alliance now or in the future if the present Communist regime stays in power in Moscow. Likewise, there is no danger of either Communism or Fascism coming back here if the Republic is given the moral support from the West that it deserves to get.

10. Hatred and bitterness toward Soviet Russia has been growing. The millions of German prisoners who have come back from Russia have been telling stories of atrocities and cruel treatment worse than anything ever experienced by prisoners of war anywhere in the world—far exceeding in brutality anything the Hitlerites did. The lack of freedom in the Soviet zone in East Germany has sent millions of refugees into West Germany—a financial problem, by the way, that is causing the German government plenty of headaches.

11. The economic position of Germany, with increased production and renewed energy, is better than has been expected. With such a big segment of the productive economy still in Russian hands and with an enormous burden of debt, however, the new republic — whose spokesmen say frankly they want to pay the debts but on a scaled-down basis—cannot see any satisfactory way out except through a five or six billion dollar international loan of twenty to thirty years' duration. This is one way they hope to pay off war claims, including those to the Jews whose homes and businesses were confiscated by the Hitler regime. The cabinet officials say they are anxious to make restitution to the Jews, and there is much discussion here over the determined efforts of the President and the Chancellor of the republic to give such debts priority of repayment over all other debts.

12. Germany is far from either economic or political stability. With a friendly hand, however, from not only the United States, but from France and Britain, she can work into a place in Europe which, with the rest of the Western countries, will counterbalance any future Soviet position of power. When that happens, the economic burden on the American people will be less than it is today, but the days of complete relief from the financial load America is carrying now in Europe are years, not months away.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Ralph Howard Alsup, the racketeer who still holds the position of vice-president of the Nevada State Federation of Labor and president of the Clark county federation, at last has been locked up in the Nevada State Penitentiary at Carson City to serve a term of from one to two years for shooting a member of the Painters' Union. Alsup shot the painter merely because the unfortunate rank-and-filer went to the union hall to present his version of the facts in a simple dispute between a brother painter and the business agent of the local Painters' Union. The date of this crime was Dec. 3, 1949, and the victim was hounded out of the state and as far away as Alaska by a cabal of union terrorists because he was the complaining witness against an habitual criminal holding high positions under William Green, president, and the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor. With the usual discount allowed first offenders who indicate a disposition to go straight, Alsup will be eligible for parole about January 1, 1953. He may even be turned loose in time to celebrate Christmas by beating up his wife in line with his marital program to date. Of course, Alsup is not a first offender, but the power of AF of L unions is so great that he may be treated as a wayward boy with an honest heart even though he is an habitual criminal with a long prison career.

Alsup is one of the rogue union bosses whom I had in mind during my discussion of American unionism with the highest authority on the subject of labor, and the Pope's adviser thereon, at the Vatican in March. Timothy Flynn, regional director of the CIO for the entire west coast by executive appointment of Philip Murray, is another veteran jail-bird and criminal with a multiple record who was high in my thoughts as I enlightened this dignitary on important phases of American unionism. Flynn's specialty was housebreaking. He further qualified for his position of great power over the law-abiding populace and industry of our west coast by two terms in prison. Faithful research in Worcester, Mass., the scene of these interesting activities, failed to disclose the slightest evidence that Flynn had ever put in a day at honest toil. He is well remembered in Worcester, mostly by the police, but only for evil works without a trace of favorable renown to mitigate his vicious reputation. Repeated efforts to reach him by long distane phone at the San Francisco headquarters of the CIO all failed.

Ralph Howard Alsup's union is the plumbers' and pipe-fitters'.

His criminal career is well known not only to William Green, but to Martin Durkin, the president of the Plumbers' Union. Green is a lay dignitary of the Baptist Church, given to serious religious

AMERICANS NEED TO BE ALERT

Enterprising groups interested in keeping America alert to danger might do the country a service by preparing a sort of five-foot shelf of books and other materials which expose how Communists really operate.

There has been an extraordinary growth in the last year or so in the documentary evidences of Communist activity. Forunately a high proportion of it appears wholly reliable.

Some prime examples are Whittaker Chambers' autobiography, "Witness," Herbert Philbrick's story of his double life as Communist Party member and FBI agent, and the current series in the Saturday Evening Post on the espionage activities of Klaus Fuchs, German-born British atomic scientist who gave the Russians the atom bomb.

No catalog of first-rate materials in this field would be quite complete without a copy of the new American film, "Walk East on Beacon," which presents in an unadorned, straightforward manner not only Communist methods but FBI techniques in tracking down Red spies in an actual case.

If thinking Americans could take advantage of all these materials, they would be in a far better position to judge the nature and extent of the Communist threat within our borders.

They would be clear on one important fundamental which now is clouded in confusion. That is that the spy and the policy-influencer are seldom — if ever — the same. All the things which a man has to do to influence policy, openly advocating pro-Soviet views, sabotaging American attitudes, are calculated to arouse suspicion of him. The good spy is in the business of not arousing suspicion.

Klaus Fuchs is a perfect example. He was a Communist, with definite convictions. At first he kept the fact quiet in his adopted Britain because he saw it as a handicap to his developing career as a scientist. But once he began spying for Russia, he had a better reason.

Fuchs became almost a model for a scientist working on a secret wartime project. He not only did nothing to stir suspicion. He aligned himself—not too ostentatiously—with those who were "tough about security." He usually spoke against releasing classified information to the public.

This pose helped make him a perfect "sleeper"—a spy whose habits are so circumspect that he virtually never draws attention. A spy net functions best with a host of sleepers. Alger Hiss was one.

That's why character testimonials in the Hiss trial and similar proceedings are really beside the point. Of course the spy can produce men to attest to his character. He would not be a spy if he could not. If he went around arousing everybody's suspicion, spouting Soviet propaganda and the like, his usefulness to a potential enemy would be zero.

The policy-influencer has his role, too, but it is a distinct one. Those who see the two roles, as interchangeable are simply ill-informed about Communist methods. They need to read the five-foot shelf of documentary materials. They do not know the enemy—or where he might be found.

So-called "fast time" in some sections of the country always seems to come at a season when things get done more slowly.

Bach, Kant, Goethe and Beethoven were Communists, says the Eastern German Culture Bureau, a Communist organization. This extraordinary statement is meant to win the allegiance of the German rank and file. As Germans are generally well informed about their great men of the past, they will probably be moved to laughter. Goethe, in particular, was a conservative and a cosmopolitan who would have viewed Communism with contempt.

The House Judiciary Committee has decided to take no legislative action on baseball and fans can now breathe a bit easier. Baseball is confronted with many problems which have resulted from the fact that the national pastime is not only a sport but is also a big business. There are some who see legislation as the only answer to these problems; others see only danger to the game in governmental intervention.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

The broader implications in the Supreme Court's ruling in the Steel Seizure Case will be apparent as the years pass, for this decision has reversed the political trend of the past two decades. It has restored congressional government; it has returned the President to his proper place in our political system.

As the immediate cause for so revolutionary a decision was a labor case, the effect is liable to be a restoration of direct collective bargaining between management and labor with a decreasing participation by government. Here, also, a trend is being reversed.

Since the organization of the NRA (1933), the tendency in this country has been toward a Fascistic labor relationship, that is, management organized into trade associations, labor organized into national trade unions, with the government as the determing factor. This concept is not unlike Mussolini's syndicates. The Wagner Act and the National Labor Relations Board were the instrumentalities of this congealing arrangement.

The hope of both labor and government was that their procedures would so equalize the political strength of the unions that industry would never be able to use economic power in a conflict with the workers. Roosevelt sought to achieve a balance of power between labor and industry. The planners of this relationship were Sidney Hillman and Lee Pressman.

The Taft-Hartley Act was designed to place upon labor greater social and political responsibility. This act, to be fully effective, needs amendment giving the unions wider authority to discipline their members. For instance, today an anti-Communist union cannot expel a member for criminal subversion; a member can only be disciplined for non-payment of dues. With a few amendments of this character, the Taft-Hartley Act can be made more workable.

However, none of these laws can ever be a substitute in a free economy for direct collective bargaining between management and labor. The present trouble in the steel industry, although it gives the appearance of being over wages and benefits, is really over altogether another question, namely, the distribution of the increased cost of production due to a wage increase.

The conflict here is over the government's power under the law to control prices. Bernard Baruch in three wars now has called attention to a fundamental economic principle: when the law of supply and demand is abandoned because of a war situation, wages, prices, rents, interest, profits have to be controlled simultaneously and on a strictly non-political basis. This has never been done because presidents are politicians. The result, particularly during World War II and during the Truman Administration, has been economic chaos.

Mr. Truman has wanted to raise steel wages without raising steel prices, except as provided for in the Capehart amendment. Had the matter been handled by direct collective bargaining, without the intervention of government, the problem might have been solved within the margins available. As, however, the Wage Stabilization Board has the power to decide what wages and prices should be, as directed by the President, then collective bargaining amounts to little more than an acceptance and confirmation of the government's decisions.

That some elements among labor are beginning to grasp the dangers of government intervention is apparent from the joining of James P. Shields, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in the Steel Seizure Case as an amicus curiae in opposition to the government's position. The railroads had been seized by the government and held for almost two years. Now that the railroads have been returned, the increase in wages amounts to what the workers could have obtained before they struck.

The steel workers did not anticipate that they would have to undergo the kind of strike they now face. They had put their dependence upon the White House in the hope that a strike could be averted. The Supreme Court decision has nullified the power of the White House to use the weapon of seizure and the White House has only the Taft-Hartley Act to use, which neither Truman nor Phil Murray wishes to invoke. Unless Congress can be got to pass another act, the steel union finds itself in as unpleasant a situation as steel management.

And it all could have been avoided by the classical method of collective bargaining which the more conservative labor leaders, such as John L. Lewis or David Dubinsky, employ. The Fascistic trend, which commenced with NRA, may disappear, even before the Election, from labor relations.

HEART AND BLOOD VESSELS

Some years ago a friend called me up and asked me if I could do anything for his 12-year-old boy who was in bed with heart disease. I asked him what his doctor had called the disease and he replied endocarditis, or inflammation of lining of heart. I told him that I knew of no cure for this disease and treatment was what the boy was receiving, that was, complete rest in bed. Today, just as diabetes and pernicious anemia can be controlled, so can our physicians' control, in fact cure, endocarditis with the antibiotics (the sulfa drugs).

In the Chicago number of Medical Clinics of North America, devoted almost entirely to heart and blood vessels diseases, Dr. G. E. "When cardiovascular disease is conquered, medical science and practice will have achieved its most important milestone on the goal toward maximum health, happiness and productivity for the middle and old age groups."

In investigating the causes of the various types of heart and blood vessel diseases, specialists in various fields have contributed articles touching on the rhythm of the heart beats, coronary sclerosis, congestive heart failure, electrocardiography, X-rays, causes of hardening of the arteries, the low fat diet for prevention of hardening of arteries, care of rheumatic heart disease patients, pitfalls in treatment of heart disease, and a study plan for the general practitioner in the diagnosis and treatment of hypertension (high blood pressure).

With these various groups of investigators at work some of whom are now able to give full time to this special but most important branch of medicine, it is probable that some day many valuable lives will be saved by their efforts.

"Yer Out---Batter Up!"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The King Committee, which has done a remarkably good job of probing tax frauds, is about to wind up its career on June 30. Before doing so, however, it has explored—very gingerly—the tax returns and business operations of one of its own members.

This is almost unheard of in Congress. Members of the House and Senate for the most part follow an unwritten rule that they do not pry into each other's business. Nevertheless, the King Committee has done some quiet probing of its own members—none other than Congressman Eugene Keough, Democrat, who is elected from plebeian Brooklyn but lives on swank Park avenue.

It happens that this columnist has kept a weather eye on Congressman Keough during the past two years and his record is interesting.

Keough was elected to Congress in 1938, but for 11 years he took no appreciable interest in Spain. His career in Congress featured a plan to send the Congressional Record to federal judges and to grant free postage to the armed forces. Not one speech did he make on Spain.

Then suddenly, after 11 silent years in Congress, Keough suddenly became the champion of Dictator Franco. He littered the Congressional Record with statements and editorials favorable to Spain. He interrupted congressional debates to defend Spain. He offered an amandment to include Spain in Marshall Plan handouts.

Franco Lobbyist

This began in 1949. It was in 1949 also that Congressman Keough was seen frequently in the company of Franco's lobbyist, amiable, likeable Charles Patrick Clark, who now draws $100,000 annually from the Spanish Embassy though in 1949 he drew only $50,000.

On Oct. 8, 1949, Congressman Keough paid a visit to Dictator Franco in Madrid in company with another Franco enthusiast, Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine. Lobbyist Charles Patrick Clark was in Madrid with them.

Traveling on a Spanish train that night, Congressman Keough was reported to have had $5,000 stolen, together with his pants, when he hung the pants too near a window in a sleeping car.

Prior to 1949, also, Congressman Keough opposed the natural gas lobby and voted against the Rizley Bill which would have hiked gas rates. The bill would have meant higher gas bills to the Brooklyn housewives who elected him, and he voted for the housewives.

But in 1949, Keough and Charley Clark, lobbyist for a gas pipe line company, as well as for Spain, had become friendly and Keough reversed himself. He not only followed the gas lobby's line during hearings in committee but actually introduced two amendments which would have made the Kerr Bill just as strong as the Rizley Bill which he had previously voted against.

After failing to strengthen the bill, and probably to protect himself with Brooklyn housewives, Keough finally voted "No" on final passage.

Fees for Tax Case

At about this time, Congressman Keough began to receive a series of checks from lobbyist Charley Clark. They were listed as payments by Clark for legal advice on a tax case which the federal government had against Silas E. Chambers of Miami. The first check was dated March 6, 1950, for $1,500; another on March 24, 1950, was for $1,000; April 5, $500; May 3, $500; and June 15, $1,000.

The interesting thing was that Keough, as a member of Congress, had no business accepting a law fee in connection with a tax case. Such law practice against the federal government by a member of Congress is illegal.

In September, 1950, some months after the checks had passed, I handed the information to the Justice Department, whereupon both Keough and Clark were quizzed by the FBI.

Immediately the congressman wrote a letter to Clark, dated Oct. 31, 1950, which appeared to be aimed at alibiing his transaction. It stated:

"I have given further consideration to the propriety of my continuing to act as advisory counsel. Therefore, if it meets with your approval, I should ask you to consider that our firm has withdrawn and consider that the fee which you previously paid us will be in full."

When the congressman and lobbyist Clark were interviewed by this column regarding the purpose of these fees, they told different stories.

According to Keough, Clark had merely dealt with his New York law firm, Halpin, Keough, and St. John, not with him. But when Clark was asked how Keough had earned these fees he explained that Keough had given very helpful advice.

"Then it was Keough who advised you on this case?" Clark was asked.

"Yes."

A short time later, the King tax fraud committee of which Keough is a member, rightly reprimanded ex-Congressman Vincent Quinn of New York for taking fees in connection with tax cases while he was a member of Congress.

Lost His Pants

"How did Keough happen to lose his pants in Spain?" I asked Clark.

"He hung 'em too near the window," Clark explained. "Someone pulled them out at a railroad station. But he only had $2,000 in his pocket—not $5,000 as reported in the press. They'd collected some money to pay for the importation of autos, and Keough was going down to the port to arrange for it.

Congressman Keough in turn was asked why he happened to support legislation which lobbyist Clark was interested in.

"I don't think I should comment," he replied.

"Why have you made so many speeches favoring Spain?" Keough was asked.

"I don't think I've had much to say about Spain," he countered. Reminded that the Congressional Record was full of his speeches, he declined to comment.

Asked about the reversal of his position regarding natural gas after Clark got into the picture, the congressman said he preferred not to go into the arguments of the gas legislation but he didn't see anything inconsistent in his position.

Questioned about the fees he had received from Clark's law firm in connection with the Silas Chambers tax matter, Keough at first replied that a lawyer's relations with his client are strictly private. Later he claimed—counter to what Clark said—that Clark's relations were with his law firm, not with him.

That is part of the record of a member of the King committee now probing tax frauds. It will be interesting to see if the King probers proceed with their investigation of their own member.

New Germany Eager to Join in Peace Move Is Revealed in Talks With Bonn Leaders

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Bonn, Germany, June 9—Lengthy talks here with officials of the government and the leaders of the opposition parties, as well as with High American officials, tend to crystallize agreement on at least one point—the new Germany of today is far different from the old and would like to take its place in the society of nations as a full-fledged, sovereign member willing to accept its share of the obligations of a peaceful Europe.

This correspondent talked privately with President Heuss of the Federal Republic, with Chancellor Adenauer and members of the government coalition, with Dr. Schumacher, opposition leader, and with various members of his party, as well as with trade-union spokesmen, and the two cabinet members in charge of finance and economics. Impressions gained from these conferences may be summarized thus:

1. There is deep appreciation of what the United States has done to help past-war Germany, and Chancellor Adenauer went so far as to say that history would record that, by helping Europe to its feet, America has done one of the most generous acts in the whole chronicle of human society.

2. There is unrest among the masses due to unsettled economic conditions and poor housing, as many of the bombed areas have not yet been restored. This sentiment is being exploited by political demagogues and can lead to a distortion of German foreign policy by clever manipulators of campaign strategy who know how to emphasize domestic issues at the expense of foreign questions. The present government majority is slender, and the elections next year are feared by the government members of parliament as likely to go against them unless the economic situation is then well in hand.

3. Germany as a whole has been persuaded by American indoctrination activities and by the terrible defeat administered in the war that dictatorship and militarism lead to war. The basic feeling in Germany against war almost approximates pacifism. It is felt that everything short of appeasement should be tried to bring about an agreement with Soviet Russia.

4. The same sentiment that is exhibited by the French Socialists exists here in the opposition Socialists—that there must be an effort to negotiate with Russia in a four-power conference, if for no other reason than to satisfy public opinion in Germany that every means of achieving peace by negotiation has been exhausted.

5. Unless there is some recognition of this underlying sentiment—which may or may not have been intensified by Communist intrigue—the European defense treaty will not be ratified here except with reservations that safeguard the German viewpoint on rearmament.

6.—Rearmament is being fought by Socialists as a roadblock to domestic progress and better housing—somewhat the same line that Bevan and the British Socialists take. It is an argument that can only be met by demonstrating again and again that the real roadblock to peace is being erected by Soviet Russia.

7.—If Germany eventually participates in a European defense plan, it will have to be under circumstances that grant her more freedom of action as a sovereign nation than a continuation of her existence as virtually an occupied country.

8.—The presence of 18,000,000 Germans in the Soviet zone of East Germany is a sobering influence on many West Germans, who honestly fear that the establishment of several German divisions, even in a European defense army, will provoke Russia and harden the Soviet attitude toward the return of East Germany to the nation.

9.—There is no danger of any Russian-German alliance now or in the future if the present Communist regime stays in power in Moscow. Likewise, there is no danger of either Communism or Fascism coming back here if the Republic is given the moral support from the West that it deserves to get.

10. Hatred and bitterness toward Soviet Russia has been growing. The millions of German prisoners who have come back from Russia have been telling stories of atrocities and cruel treatment worse than anything ever experienced by prisoners of war anywhere in the world—far exceeding in brutality anything the Hitlerites did. The lack of freedom in the Soviet zone in East Germany has sent millions of refugees into West Germany—a financial problem, by the way, that is causing the German government plenty of headaches.

11. The economic position of Germany, with increased production and renewed energy, is better than has been expected. With such a big segment of the productive economy still in Russian hands and with an enormous burden of debt, however, the new republic — whose spokesmen say frankly they want to pay the debts but on a scaled-down basis—cannot see any satisfactory way out except through a five or six billion dollar international loan of twenty to thirty years' duration. This is one way they hope to pay off war claims, including those to the Jews whose homes and businesses were confiscated by the Hitler regime. The cabinet officials say they are anxious to make restitution to the Jews, and there is much discussion here over the determined efforts of the President and the Chancellor of the republic to give such debts priority of repayment over all other debts.

12. Germany is far from either economic or political stability. With a friendly hand, however, from not only the United States, but from France and Britain, she can work into a place in Europe which, with the rest of the Western countries, will counterbalance any future Soviet position of power. When that happens, the economic burden on the American people will be less than it is today, but the days of complete relief from the financial load America is carrying now in Europe are years, not months away.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Ralph Howard Alsup, the racketeer who still holds the position of vice-president of the Nevada State Federation of Labor and president of the Clark county federation, at last has been locked up in the Nevada State Penitentiary at Carson City to serve a term of from one to two years for shooting a member of the Painters' Union. Alsup shot the painter merely because the unfortunate rank-and-filer went to the union hall to present his version of the facts in a simple dispute between a brother painter and the business agent of the local Painters' Union. The date of this crime was Dec. 3, 1949, and the victim was hounded out of the state and as far away as Alaska by a cabal of union terrorists because he was the complaining witness against an habitual criminal holding high positions under William Green, president, and the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor. With the usual discount allowed first offenders who indicate a disposition to go straight, Alsup will be eligible for parole about January 1, 1953. He may even be turned loose in time to celebrate Christmas by beating up his wife in line with his marital program to date. Of course, Alsup is not a first offender, but the power of AF of L unions is so great that he may be treated as a wayward boy with an honest heart even though he is an habitual criminal with a long prison career.

Alsup is one of the rogue union bosses whom I had in mind during my discussion of American unionism with the highest authority on the subject of labor, and the Pope's adviser thereon, at the Vatican in March. Timothy Flynn, regional director of the CIO for the entire west coast by executive appointment of Philip Murray, is another veteran jail-bird and criminal with a multiple record who was high in my thoughts as I enlightened this dignitary on important phases of American unionism. Flynn's specialty was housebreaking. He further qualified for his position of great power over the law-abiding populace and industry of our west coast by two terms in prison. Faithful research in Worcester, Mass., the scene of these interesting activities, failed to disclose the slightest evidence that Flynn had ever put in a day at honest toil. He is well remembered in Worcester, mostly by the police, but only for evil works without a trace of favorable renown to mitigate his vicious reputation. Repeated efforts to reach him by long distane phone at the San Francisco headquarters of the CIO all failed.

Ralph Howard Alsup's union is the plumbers' and pipe-fitters'.

His criminal career is well known not only to William Green, but to Martin Durkin, the president of the Plumbers' Union. Green is a lay dignitary of the Baptist Church, given to serious religious hower's backers a place among the top officials of the July convention and many of them were counseling a fight, particularly against the prospective choice of MacArthur as keynoter.

They apparently are outnumbered by Taft men on the arrangements committee, however.

MacArthur has been an open supporter of Taft and Ralpy Cake, Oregon national committeeman who is backing Eisenhower, told this reporter, he for one, opposes selection of the ousted Pacific commander for the keynoter's job.

"I don't think anyone as committed as he is to a candidate should be the keynoter," Cake declared.

However, J. Russel Sprague, New York national committeeman and one of Eisenhower's top backers, said he doesn't know yet if any fight will be made on MacArthur.

Will Act Tomorrow

The arrangements committee, busying itself with routine affairs today, won't act on convention officials until tomorrow.

Outside of its choice of a temporary chairman, the group seemed unlikely to take any part in a prospective convention battle over the seating of disputed southern delegations.

The temporary chairman has it in his power to rule whether contested delegations, seated temporarily in the convention, can vote on the permanent admission of their own and other disputed groups.

Eisenhower's backers made it plain here they intend to fight to the last ditch for the seating of a Texas group which contains 32 supporters of the general and six Taft backers.

This delegation was chosen in a rump convention after the Taft-controlled Texas GOP convention refused to seat Eisenhower delegates to represent the state.

Miniature Train Crashes Injuring 21 Passengers

Buffalo, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—The gaudily painted miniature train at the zoo picked up speed. Its Sunday passengers—mostly children—shouted gaily to their friends.

Suddenly there were screams from 200 onlookers as the tiny train lurched from the rails at 10 miles an hour. Two cars overturned.

Twenty-one persons were injured—but the most seriously hurt was six-year-old Sheryl Warrer., who had a compound fracture of the leg.

Zoo Curator Joseph A. Abgott said about 60 persons were aboard the amusement train. The cause of the wreck was not determined immediately.

Flood Control

cent within four days in a safe and judicious manner.

2. Dams, weirs and reservoirs constructed without modern mechanical devices (to enable them to meet the requirements of the first point, above) shall on and after January 1, 1953, retain no amount of water greater than 90 per cent of dated capacity, and shall reduce their capacity to that percentage within seven days after precipitation.

3. No dam, weir or barrier impounding more than 10 billion gallons shall in any event retain more than 95 per cent of capacity on or after March 15.

4. The New York State Flood Control Committee shall immediately survey all streams above and below any reservoir or weir or dam impounding more than 10 billion gallons of water and shall authorize the dredging of all stream beds that have become clogged or silted in such a manner as to interfere with water carrying capacity. It is the intent herein that primary attention be given to those locations that have been the scene of floods within the past two years.

5. The State Forest Practice Act shall be amended to provide (a) each Forest District shall have a minimum of three district foresters; (b) all timber owners should be contacted to educate them to the advantages under the State Forest Act and to obtain greater cooperation in conservation procedures, and (c) to require state reforestation of all underdeveloped areas within 1,000 feet of all stream beds that in the opinion of the local district forester have been overcut.

6. No manner of construction except approved dams, weirs or reservoirs shall be permitted to be made over, on, in or adjacent to any creek bed, river bed or stream bed that will interfere with the free flow of water therein without proper measures being taken to provide for the same capacity of water to pass the point where such construction is made. This shall include dumping of fill of any kind along the shores.

Reviews Floods

In opening the meeting Saturday night, Chairman Walker reviewed the floods of March 15, 1951; April 6 and June 2 of this year, and noted that all occurred since the opening of the Gilboa tunnel in 1928. He said the flood victims group had already accomplished the setting up of a flood warning system, had filed damage claims with New York city, and had requested the city to drop the level of the Ashokan prior to the April 6 flood.

Walker stated that the frequency of the floods indicates that immediate action for state-wide flood control must be adopted to prevent further damage. Charging that petitions directly to New York city brought no relief, Walker contended that the group should seek action by the state legislature.

They apparently are outnumbered by Taft men on the arrangements committee, however.

MacArthur has been an open supporter of Taft and Ralpy Cake, Oregon national committeeman who is backing Eisenhower, told this reporter, he for one, opposes selection of the ousted Pacific commander for the keynoter's job.

"I don't think anyone as committed as he is to a candidate should be the keynoter," Cake declared.

However, J. Russel Sprague, New York national committeeman and one of Eisenhower's top backers, said he doesn't know yet if any fight will be made on MacArthur.

Will Act Tomorrow

The arrangements committee, busying itself with routine affairs today, won't act on convention officials until tomorrow.

Outside of its choice of a temporary chairman, the group seemed unlikely to take any part in a prospective convention battle over the seating of disputed southern delegations.

The temporary chairman has it in his power to rule whether contested delegations, seated temporarily in the convention, can vote on the permanent admission of their own and other disputed groups.

Eisenhower's backers made it plain here they intend to fight to the last ditch for the seating of a Texas group which contains 32 supporters of the general and six Taft backers.

This delegation was chosen in a rump convention after the Taft-controlled Texas GOP convention refused to seat Eisenhower delegates to represent the state.

Miniature Train Crashes Injuring 21 Passengers

Buffalo, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—The gaudily painted miniature train at the zoo picked up speed. Its Sunday passengers—mostly children—shouted gaily to their friends.

Suddenly there were screams from 200 onlookers as the tiny train lurched from the rails at 10 miles an hour. Two cars overturned.

Twenty-one persons were injured—but the most seriously hurt was six-year-old Sheryl Warner, who had a compound fracture of the leg.

Zoo Curator Joseph A. Abgott said about 60 persons were aboard the amusement train. The cause of the wreck was not determined immediately.

This shall include dumping of fill of any kind along the shores.

Reviews Floods

In opening the meeting Saturday night, Chairman Walker reviewed the floods of March 15, 1951; April 6 and June 2 of this year, and noted that all occurred since the opening of the Gilboa tunnel in 1928. He said the flood victims group had already accomplished the setting up of a flood warning system, had filed damage claims with New York city, and had requested the city to drop the level of the Ashokan prior to the April 6 flood.

Walker stated that the frequency of the floods indicates that immediate action for state-wide flood control must be adopted to prevent further damage. Charging that petitions directly to New York city brought no relief, Walker contended that the group should seek action by the state legislature.

BOOK REVIEW

MITTEE
By Daphne Rooke
309 pp

Against a backdrop of South Africa, the author paints a dramatic picture of the beauty and terror of this semi-civilized part of the world in the 1890's.

The central character is Maria Van Brandenburg (Mittee, as she likes to be called) pretty, high-spirited daughter of a distinguished Boer family. Sole survivor of the family and heiress to a large estate, she is engaged to dashing Paul Du Plessis, son of the local magistrate, but puts off marriage with him for three years while she goes about the countryside staying with various farm families, teaching their children and having her own way about everything; accompanied always by her faithful servant, Selina—a pretty little colored girl who spends most of her time caring for her adored "Nonnie," and the rest of it resisting the amorous advances of Jansie, a giant colored man whose sadistic tendencies frighten her.

Finally Mittee goes to visit her overbearing aunt Margarita in Pretoria and there sees her aunt destroy her daughter's hope of marrying her cousin, Leon whom she loves madly. Then Paul comes, bearing many yards of wonderful silk for Mittee's trousseau and that means she must consent to be married as soon as the wedding gown is completed, which she does. But she does not love Paul and unfortunately Selina does. In fact he seduced her some time back and now, against Paul's protests, she stays on after the marriage. Then comes a crisis. Violent passions are unleashed. Jonas, becoming suspicious of Selina, abuses her brutally and soon after is murdered. Paul is brought to trial but released for want of evidence which Selina refuses to give. After that Selina is obliged to leave Paul's home. She is befriended by Basil Castledene, a medical missionary who lives nearby. She marries gentle, handsome half-breed Fanie who has always loved her and goes to live with him and his poor imbecile mother whom he adores.

For five years Selina does not see Mittee, in which time Paul and Mittee prosper greatly, build a grand new home and have a little crippled son and lose him under peculiar circumstances.

Then came the great drouth, bringing Fanie and Selina back to Plessburg where Mittee lived. A smallpox epidemic quarantines Paul away from home. He is cared for and cured by Dr. Castledene and then Mittee discovers that she loves the doctor.

Their friendship opens up new vistas of happiness for her but she remains faithful to Paul. While Paul is away at war, Kaffirs brutally attack Mittee's prudish, viper-tongued sister-in-law, Letty. Mittee courageously drives them away and Letty returns her kindness by carrying scandalous tales of Mittee's alleged infidelity to Paul upon his return home. In a rage Paul beats Mittee into unconsciousness with a buffalo hide whip, and at the same time lets slip his carefully guarded secret of two particularly vicious crimes in his past.

In the meantime Castledene's Mission has been burned and he goes away. He returns with the English army and a battle rages near Paul's home. Paul and his followers return the attack and after the battle Fanie finds Castledene wounded and helpless on a hill across the valley.

Fanie tells Mittee who decides to leave Paul forever and go to Castledene. She orders Fanie to load an oxcart with provisions and a few of her belongings. Then at nightfall with Fanie, his mother and Selina she starts out for what is to be a frightful trip. First they go to the shack where Fanie has placed Castledene, bind up his wounds, load him onto the cart and proceed as well as they can. A flood washes oxen, cart and all their belonging away. Miraculously they are saved. They huddle in a filthy cave while Castledene goes on for food and help. The cave experience was frightful. Rushing out by day to snatch something to eat, huddling in the cave at night, taking turns keeping watch while a hungry lion crept closer and closer.

After that in a few swift, well-chosen sentences the author brings the story to a dramatic close. An engrossing tale with a deep undercurrent depicting the deterioration of character which comes from arrogance and brutality of the strong toward the weak.

As Pegler Sees It

preaching. Murray and Durkin are noted for their piety.

Like Flynn, Alsup has authority in more than one state. The federal government has been pouring money into Alsup's jurdisdiction for new "defense projects" including the Nevada atom bomb experiments. Some of his subjects have been filching materials to build him a home. Laborers, under easily understood coercion, are donating time and skill to this worthy work.

The fact that Alsup is likely to kill one or more persons unless he is locked away for life or killed first is obvious on the face of his record. He has served time for an armed stickup and assault with a gun. In addition to his present shooting job, he was arrested last fall for having a loaded pistol when he got roaring drunk and wrecked an automobile at grave peril to law-abiding motorists on a crowded highway. This happened when he was out on bail in the shooting case. He also did a prison term in Texas for helping a number of criminals to escape. He never was a worker in any legitimate field. The pious Mr. Durkin lives in Chevy Chase, Md., a select suburb of Washington. He is a dignitary of the American Federation of Labor.

Alsup is under an additional sentence of six months on a federal charge of conspiring with dealers in ventilating machinary, plumbing and so forth to extort money from the taxpayers. He used his power as a unioneer to withhold union labor from government works unless the building contractors specified certain metal products. Alsup was fined $5,000 in addition to his six-month sentence. Two contractors also got six months. One was fined $5,000 and the other $4,000.

A citizen of Las Vegas writes: "Even prior to the sentence there was quite a bit of activity in the local plumbers' union to be sure that Alsup would not have to pay $5,000. The union couldn't legally pay it so a 'voluntary assessment' of a day's pay was levied. There were approximately 250 members. At $20 each that added up to $5,000. At first it was to be a mandatory assessment but the directors decided that this would be unconstitutional. It was made voluntary which meant that the plumbers could either put up or wait months for their next job because Alsup had control. They had been paying 1½ per cent of their pay to defray the cost of Alsup's other brushes with the law. Several wives of plumbers wanted to protest but were afraid. Two wives said the assessment meant that they would have to go without oil to heat their homes. Fear goes deep in the hearts of these working people. They may be blacklisted if they protest. When you own your home in a community, it is a tragic prospect.

"Alsup beat his wife so badly on Christmas Eve that she was taken to a hospital and it was necessary for neighbors to care for their two children. This was done by plumbers' wives."

This and the Flynn case will be included in the survey of American labor under criminal unioneers which the Vatican dignitary requested me to prepare for the information of the Holy Father. He said the Pope's regular American sources of information had not reported this phase.

Miami, Fla., June 9 (AP)—Tourists from New York are always arriving in Miami in trains and planes and buses and cars, but they very seldom come in little outboard motorboats. "I always wanted to take a good long ride in a small boat," said the tanned and weary Adams as he putt-putted into a berth at Pier 5 Saturday night.

The Mature Parent

Final Exam Time Is Test for Parents as Well as Children

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

In Charles Kingsley's immortal classic, "The Water Babies," its hero's adventures take him to a sad land inhabited by turnips which were once human children.

But the children who "crammed" so hard to pass school examinations and please their parents, that a certain remorseless fairy turned them all into vegetables. When Tom, the hero spoke to them, they only wrung their leaves and cried, "Don't talk to us! We've got to think! The Examiner's coming!"

In no time at all final exams are coming for Bill and Sue. Though they don't wring their hands, they are not particularly calm. They are saying anxiously to each other all over the country, "What'll your pop say if you're left back? . . . Miss Ames says she's done all she can about my algebra and the rest is up to me. . . ."

Final exams test mature parents as well as Bill and Sue. They test our insight, patience and love. Perhaps, hardest of all, they test our alertness to the passing of time when comfort was a pat on the head or vague advice to "get in there and win." This year's final exams may be testing our awareness that a child needs serious instruction on how to await orderly judgment on his value.

Let's give the principle of wise waiting to him. Let's say, "Do your best. Your responsibility begins and ends with just doing the best you can."

It may be this kind of wisdom Bill and Sue are looking for as they await the judgment of final exams.

If they need it, they should get it.

One thing's sure—they're going to need it, sooner or later. The sooner they get it, the sooner they can start proving it. They are going to spend a lot of time awaiting the world's judgment on their effort. If they can learn right now to trust doing right by today's realities and let tomorrow's unrealities look out for themselves, they'll be fine.

They won't bite their nails in personnel offices waiting for word on the job they want. They won't smoke too many cigarettes waiting for an O.K. on the way they sold their first contract, repaired their first car, took their first dictation. They'll have protection against the frenzied confusions into which we fall when we try to live today and tomorrow both at once.

We may be startled at the way they grab at the truth. Just as we are so often amazed at how our boy or girl has outgrown last year's ginghams and shorts, we may be amazed at the way they eat up values we have considered too old, too profound to give them.

We can grow so accustomed to soothing with pats on the head that we don't realize that baby days are over and new moral diet is needed. Final exams are among children's first experiences with the world's appraisal of their labor. They are also children's first opportunities to prove the principle of faith.

We parents might apply that principle ourselves during the coming weeks. Charles Kingsley is quiet clear who was responsible for the "cramming" that turned children into turnips in the Land of the Tomtoddies.

Fanie tells Mittee who decides to leave Paul forever and go to Castledene. She orders Fanie to load an oxcart with provisions and a few of her belongings. Then at nightfall with Fanie, his mother and Selina she starts out for what is to be a frightful trip. First they go to the shack where Fanie has placed Castledene, bind up his wounds, load him onto the cart and proceed as well as they can. A flood washes oxen, cart and all their belonging away. Miraculously they are saved. They huddle in a filthy cave while Castledene goes on for food and help. The cave experience was frightful. Rushing out by day to snatch something to eat, huddling in the cave at night, taking turns keeping watch while a hungry lion crept closer and closer.

After that in a few swift, well-chosen sentences the author brings the story to a dramatic close. An engrossing tale with a deep undercurrent depicting the deterioration of character which comes from arrogance and brutality of the strong toward the weak.

As Pegler Sees It

preaching. Murray and Durkin are noted for their piety.

Like Flynn, Alsup has authority in more than one state. The federal government has been pouring money into Alsup's jurdisdiction for new "defense projects" including the Nevada atom bomb experiments. Some of his subjects have been filching materials to build him a home. Laborers, under easily understood coercion, are donating time and skill to this worthy work.

The fact that Alsup is likely to kill one or more persons unless he is locked away for life or killed first is obvious on the face of his record. He has served time for an armed stickup and assault with a gun. In addition to his present shooting job, he was arrested last fall for having a loaded pistol when he got roaring drunk and wrecked an automobile at grave peril to law-abiding motorists on a crowded highway. This happened when he was out on bail in the shooting case. He also did a prison term in Texas for helping a number of criminals to escape. He never was a worker in any legitimate field. The pious Mr. Durkin lives in Chevy Chase, Md., a select suburb of Washington. He is a dignitary of the American Federation of Labor.

Alsup is under an additional sentence of six months on a federal charge of conspiring with dealers in ventilating machinary, plumbing and so forth to extort money from the taxpayers. He used his power as a unioneer to withhold union labor from government works unless the building contractors specified certain metal products. Alsup was fined $5,000 in addition to his six-month sentence. Two contractors also got six months. One was fined $5,000 and the other $4,000.

A citizen of Las Vegas writes: "Even prior to the sentence there was quite a bit of activity in the local plumbers' union to be sure that Alsup would not have to pay $5,000. The union couldn't legally pay it so a 'voluntary assessment' of a day's pay was levied. There were approximately 250 members. At $20 each that added up to $5,000. At first it was to be a mandatory assessment but the directors decided that this would be unconstitutional. It was made voluntary which meant that the plumbers could either put up or wait months for their next job because Alsup had control. They had been paying 1½ per cent of their pay to defray the cost of Alsup's other brushes with the law. Several wives of plumbers wanted to protest but were afraid. Two wives said the assessment meant that they would have to go without oil to heat their homes. Fear goes deep in the hearts of these working people. They may be blacklisted if they protest. When you own your home in a community, it is a tragic prospect.

"Alsup beat his wife so badly on Christmas Eve that she was taken to a hospital and it was necessary for neighbors to care for their two children. This was done by plumbers' wives."

This and the Flynn case will be included in the survey of American labor under criminal unioneers which the Vatican dignitary requested me to prepare for the information of the Holy Father. He said the Pope's regular American sources of information had not reported this phase.

Realizes Ambition

Miami, Fla., June 9 (AP)—Tourists from New York are always arriving in Miami in trains and planes and buses and cars, but they very seldom come in little outboard motorboats. Joseph Adams, a free-lance photographer from Brookhaven, L. I., got here that way—at the helm of a 16-foot runabout in which he bounced and tossed and rode ocean swells for some 2,000 miles. "I always wanted to take a good long ride in a small boat," said the tanned and weary Adams as he putt-putted into a berth at Pier 5 Saturday night.

"Gaol", the old English term for prison, is pronounced "jail."

The Mature Parent

Final Exam Time Is Test for Parents as Well as Children

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

In Charles Kingsley's immortal classic, "The Water Babies," its hero's adventures take him to a sad land inhabited by turnips which were once human children.

But the children who "crammed" so hard to pass school examinations and please their parents, that a certain remorseless fairy turned them all into vegetables. When Tom, the hero spoke to them, they only wrung their leaves and cried, "Don't talk to us! We've got to think! The Examiner's coming!"

In no time at all final exams are coming for Bill and Sue. Though they don't wring their hands, they are not particularly calm. They are saying anxiously to each other all over the country, "What'll your pop say if you're left back? . . . Miss Ames says she's done all she can about my algebra and the rest is up to me. . . ."

Final exams test mature parents as well as Bill and Sue. They test our insight, patience and love. Perhaps, hardest of all, they test our alertness to the passing of time when comfort was a pat on the head or vague advice to "get in there and win." This year's final exams may be testing our awareness that a child needs serious instruction on how to await orderly judgment on his value.

Let's give the principle of wise waiting to him. Let's say, "Do your best. Your responsibility begins and ends with just doing the best you can."

It may be this kind of wisdom Bill and Sue are looking for as they await the judgment of final exams.

If they need it, they should get it.

One thing's sure—they're going to need it sooner or later. The sooner they get it, the sooner they can start proving it. They are going to spend a lot of time awaiting the world's judgment on their effort. If they can learn right now to trust doing right by today's realities and let tomorrow's unrealities look out for themselves, they'll be fine.

They won't bite their nails in personnel offices waiting for word on the job they want. They won't smoke too many cigarettes waiting for an O.K. on the way they sold their first contract, repaired their first car, took their first dictation. They'll have protection against the frenzied confusions into which we fall when we try to live today and tomorrow both at once.

We may be startled at the way they grab at the truth. Just as we are so often amazed at how our boy or girl has outgrown last year's ginghams and shorts, we may be amazed at the way they eat up values we have considered too old, too profound to give them.

We can grow so accustomed to soothing with pats on the head that we don't realize that baby days are over and new moral diet is needed. Final exams are among children's first experiences with the world's appraisal of their labor. They are also children's first opportunities to prove the principle of faith.

We parents might apply that principle ourselves during the coming weeks. Charles Kingsley is quiet clear who was responsible for the "cramming" that turned children into turnips in the Land of the Tomtoddies.

A Case for the Vest

By FRANK TRIPP

From the lush days of two-pant suits to these times of trying to find a suit with a vest is a broad jump for old-timers. They'll never get used to it. Just when they began to accept a two-piece suit of pajamas, the stylists sprung the two-piece daytime apparel on them.

Many never fell for the two-piece pajama. Plenty only wear the pants in hotels and sleeping cars, then kick 'em off under the covers. I've got a drawer full of pajama pants, good as new, yet the coats became dust cloths years ago.

How men dress in the secrecy of their own bed chamber is pretty much their own business. But how they look in the daytime has become the business of inconsiderate stylists who have decided that men can do without vests. They can, if they must, but lots of 'em don't like it.

Time was when only Palm Beaches, tropical worsteds and seersuckers for hot days came in two-piece suits. A vest was a must with all else. Often as an extra inducement, there were two pairs of pants—a four-piece suit.

IT WAS man's acceptance of the sport coat and unmatched trousers that rang the bell on the vest, say the tailors; and it could be that unmatched suits will come next, they warn.

Which suggests that the stylists could take a leaf out of the past and make a lot of men very happy. Remember the separate vests of yore?

They were both gay and fancy or plain and warm, according to the needs of the wearer. Though every suit came with a vest, most men also sported extra vests; which made business for the vest makers and brightened the landscape.

Vests were of silks, satins, velvets, corduroys, and tweeds. Some were cut high, some low, some double-breasted with coatlike lapels. Fancy buttons spread down the front and a heavy gold watch chain crossed the expanse with dangling fraternal fobs as big as a silver dollar; or an elk's tooth that told by its size how big an Elk the wearer rated himself—and how big his bank roll.

WHEN WARMTH was the objective, cloth almost as heavy as overcoat material was common, but these too could be gay. Warmer houses and heated automobiles cast such garments out, along with the red flannel chest protector, which was a bib-like thing worn next to the skin, to itch the wearer.

Even fashion had to take note that men can shiver, so came the sleeveless sweater vest. It's a very natty thing but you can't unbutton it, it has no pockets and with it a belt, rather than suspenders, is almost a must—a little inconvenience that you'll have to take a fat man's word for, without going into details.

Besides, there are thinner men of means and distinction and obscure, humble men, who, without suspenders, lose half of their productive time hiking up their pants. An inflationary item that has escaped Washington's attention.

BUT THE NET of it seems to be that most men miss the vest for one of two main reasons, sometimes for both. Fat men want them to cover up their bay windows and the gaping front of their button-trained shirt. Men of all sizes miss the pockets.

Without them man must transfer to his desk, his workbench or a stand beside his easy chair all of his vest pocket companions when he takes off his coat.

Shouldn't take off his coat? Shucks, that hifalutin' bromide about "shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves in three generations" is the bunk. Every generation of men who get things done takes off its coat.

This is only half the case that could be made for the vest—or is it for the pockets? Won't somebody who tells us what to wear save the vest for old-fashioned menfolk and new-fashioned fat ones?

There's an encouraging movement in that direction, even if they have renamed the good old waistcoat. It's now the Tattersall, but it has all the earmarks of what was once known as a vest.

Raise for Builders

New York, June 9 (AP)—A 15-cents-per-hour wage increase for 100,000 building trades workers in the New York city area was announced yesterday. The pay boost which becomes effective August 1 was agreed upon after seven months of negotiations based on a wage reopening clause for cost-of-living wage hikes. The pay raise will affect 17 different building trades represented by 23 unions who are members of the council. The new wage scale will raise wages of the lowest-paid workers in the group, excavating laborers, to $2.05 cents per hour. The highest scale will be $3.40 an hour, the rate for hoisting engineers and structural iron workers.

Nearly half of all pedestrians killed in traffic are struck in areas away from regular crosswalks.

Will Move Art Treasure

New York, June 9 (AP)—The Metropolitan Museum of Art will move more than a million dollars worth of art to Hofstra College at Hempstead, N. Y., for a two-month exhibition, it was announced yesterday. The Hofstra College exhibition, with a 24-hour staff of Metropolitan guards, will be open to the public daily starting June 29.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

From time to time I am asked about restoration of old oil paintings. That is not a job to be done by amateurs even if the correct method were written out and before them. Each painting is treated differently and if a good painting only experts should touch it for restoration purposes. It was my good fortune to be in the Senate House Museum when the Coykendall collection of important Vanderlyn paintings were being examined for restoration purposes by Albert Milch, Sr. and his son, Harold. The Milch Galleries of 55 E. 57th street, New York city were the first galleries on the famous 57th street of today's line of Art Schools and art galleries. They are known to be experts in restoration of oil paintings. That is an art in itself acquired over a long period of years.

At the time I followed the famous son and father as they picked up the Vanderlyn paintings and asked the younger Mr. Milch: "What's the first thing you do with a darkened cracked background of a Vanderlyn like this?" He said, "We examine it for several days so we can best approach its particular problems." I asked the elder Mr. Milch what they washed oil paintings with. He said "Just white soap, like castile or ivory and with a soft cloth." The younger Mr. Milch also explained that often, when a painting is badly worn or cracked, they glue on a special material on the back for added support. In asking about retouching some of the spots where the paint came off. "Oh, No," the elder Mr. Milch explained, "Then it wouldn't be a Vanderlyn." So I take it, no other brush stroke may touch the front of the canvas paint except the original artist. In asking about the finishing last coat of varnish that is so important to a restored painting, they said that in the wrong hands without experience a good painting could be only ruined.

At the time, Dr. Albert B. Corey, state historian from Albany, was down and he conducted me around the Governor's Room where the valuable documents were displayed. Some had been creased for years and stained from years of wear and spoilage but still experts were able to wash them and straighten them out to make them readable. Some were laminated as G. I. discharge papers were done up right after the war. Just how these papers signed long ago by Washington and other famous men of those days could have been washed and so cleaned without the loss of the fragile and faded signature in an art as closely guarded no doubt as restorations of oil paintings. I asked at the time what Mr. Corey thought a Vanderlyn was worth. He said he saw a portrait of Aaron Burr, about a foot and a half square by Vanderlyn in a New York gallery which was priced at around $12,000.

Old books and documents come my may sometime and I wish at some time I had taken a course in book-binding so I could fix the backs with the proper glue and paper. It seems every item has to be treated differently as Mr. Milch explained about oil paintings. For old newspapers I like tea paper pasted on with white library paste along the edges of the sheets. I do that with old prints too when the edges become frayed.

They are known to be experts in restoration of oil paintings. That is an art in itself acquired over a long period of years.

At the time I followed the famous son and father as they picked up the Vanderlyn paintings and asked the younger Mr. Milch: "What's the first thing you do with a darkened cracked background of a Vanderlyn like this?" He said, "We examine it for several days so we can best approach its particular problems." I asked the elder Mr. Milch what they washed oil paintings with. He said "Just white soap, like castile or ivory and with a soft cloth." The younger Mr. Milch also explained that often, when a painting is badly worn or cracked, they glue on a special material on the back for added support. In asking about retouching some of the spots where the paint came off. "Oh, No," the elder Mr. Milch explained, "Then it wouldn't be a Vanderlyn." So I take it, no other brush stroke may touch the front of the canvas paint except the original artist. In asking about the finishing last coat of varnish that is so important to a restored painting, they said that in the wrong hands without experience a good painting could be only ruined.

At the time, Dr. Albert B. Corey, state historian from Albany, was down and he conducted me around the Governor's Room where the valuable documents were displayed. Some had been creased for years and stained from years of wear and spoilage but still experts were able to wash them and straighten them out to make them readable. Some were laminated as G. I. discharge papers were done up right after the war. Just how these papers signed long ago by Washington and other famous men of those days could have been washed and so cleaned without the loss of the fragile and faded signature in an art as closely guarded no doubt as restorations of oil paintings. I asked at the time what Mr. Corey thought a Vanderlyn was worth. He said he saw a portrait of Aaron Burr, about a foot and a half square by Vanderlyn in a New York gallery which was priced at around $12,000.

Old books and documents come my may sometime and I wish at some time I had taken a course in book-binding so I could fix the backs with the proper glue and paper. It seems every item has to be treated differently as Mr. Milch explained about oil paintings. For old newspapers I like tea paper pasted on with white library paste along the edges of the sheets. I do that with old prints too when the edges become frayed.

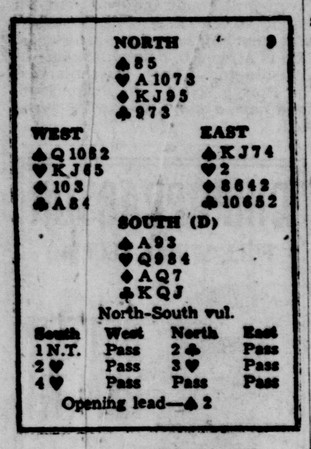
Be on Lookout For Trick Hands



By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When today's hand was played in the recent tournament at Asbury Park some North-South pairs wound up at three no-trump. They all lived to regret it since there was practically no play at all for nine tricks against a spade opening.

At some tables the superior contract of four hearts was reached, usually with the help of the Stayman Convention. North's response of two clubs did not show a suit, but merely asked South to show a biddable major, if he could. After that it was easy to reach a game contract in hearts.

At one table the game in hearts was defeated by a fine defensive play. West opened a low spade and South won with the ace. Declarer properly led the eight of hearts and let it ride for a finesse. When it held he continued with the four of hearts, West put up the jack, and dummy won with the ace.

East's discard gave the declarer a nasty jolt. With a normal 3-2 trump break his game contract would have been very easy. With the actual break he was in trouble.

Declarer now switched to clubs, knocking out West's ace. At this point, West was tempted to lay down the king of hearts and continue with his low heart to clean up the trump suit. Such a defense would have permitted declarer to take ten tricks.

West saw the light in time. Instead of leading out the trumps he cashed the queen of spades and led a third spade, forcing dummy to ruff.

Now South was doomed. If he tried to draw trumps, West would take the king of hearts and continue with his fourth spade to knock out declarer's last trump.

If declarer failed to tackle the trumps West would ruff a diamond with his small trump, after which the King of hearts would take the setting trick.

YMCA Day Camp To Open June 23

The YMCA Day Camp which opens at DeWitt Lake Monday, June 23, now has over two-thirds of its regular registration in and more registrations coming in every day, as announced by Lou Schafer, camp director this morning.

All the 1952 camp leaders for the season have been selected and they will have a special leaders training session at the YMCA Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. Besides going over regular program work and the craft material, Schafer will school all leaders in their new work of helping the boy and girl day campers in the new National YMCA swimming program. All leaders will meet in the pool at 8:30 p. m. and will go through all four tests as they will be taught at Pine Knoll Day Camp this summer. Schafer claims that with these new tests, besides learning to swim that all campers will learn much more about the water and be better adjusted than with any swimming program in the past. All swimmers must learn seven and eight different water skills in each one of the different graded tests besides learning to swim. Schafer will have two adult assistants assisting in the learner's swim and the senior and junior leaders will engage in instructing the campers in their water stunts and skills.

Miriam Snyder, who is a Kingston High School graduate and is this year graduating from Plattsburgh State Teachers' College, will assist at Day Camp this season in the place of Carol Culloton, who is taking special work at Cortland State Teachers' College summer school. Paul Donohue, who is finishing his third year at Springfield College in the Pre-Medical division, will be Schafer's other assistant.

This gives the YMCA Day Camp three expert swimming instructors ofr the 1952 camp season, along with junior and senior leaders, all of which have passed their life saving and water safety work in the YMCA and Red Cross programs.

Timely Tips for Your Fast-Growing Garden

By HENRY PREE
Written for NEA Service

Begin hedge-trimming now, as it is easier to do while the new wood is soft. The properly-shaped hedge is narrower at the top than at the bottom, and the top should be rounded rather than flat.

The sloping sides admit more light to the lower branches, which is important to induce better bottom growth.

Raspberris, being shallow rooted, must be given extra water during the bearing season if rains are inadequate. Ample soil moisture means a better crop.

Aphids, or plant lice, are now appearing on a great number of trees, shrubs, roses and perennials. These tiny sucking insects, if not kept under control, do a lot of damage by curling the leaves and stunting the blooms. They can be eliminated by frequent applications of a contact insecticide.

The spray must come into actual contact with the aphids to be of any help. The usual dilution is one-half teaspoon of insecticide to one quart of slightly soapy water. Do not let these pests get a start.

Easy to cut now that wood is soft, hedge should be trimmed narrower at top than bottom.

If you have not put in those annual flower seeds intended for sowing directly in the outdoor garden, better get at it.

Nearly all tall flowers will benefit by staking against the pressure of high winds and heavy rain. This is particularly true of Delphinium and lilies.

A last-minute rose garden can be made even now if you buy pot-grown plants. They can be transferred without much harmful root disturbance.

The ground is fairly warm and the weather settled, so get the Dahlia tubers in now.

The early sowing of vegetables must be properly thinned out; plants that are unduly crowded become thin and spindly and never develop into healthy vigorous specimens. Thin the plants when small.

Sow warm weather crops at this time. Beans, limas, corn, squash, pumpkins, okra, melons, etc., are all warm crops.

Succession plantings of the quickly maturing vegetable crops need to be kept up if you want a long season of yield. Sow when the preceding planting is up.

Making Tests on Jet Seaplane Is Report

Baltimore, June 9 (AP) — Tests are being conducted on a jet-powered seaplane which was developed from a World War 2 experimental craft, the Glenn L. Martin Company and the navy have announced.

The plane, known as the M-270, is being taxied and flight-tested, the announcement said. The plane is not new. The lower portion of the hull of the former XP5M-1 has been revamped and the craft now serves as a test model for future jet designs.

The announcement yesterday said the plane also is providing other engineering information in addition to being a model for jet seaplanes.

Ready to Talk

Hanover, N. H., June 9 (AP)—Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador to the United States, said yesterday that "it seems unlikely that for many years the world can become a comfortable place. Yet we do not believe war is inevitable." Franks spoke at the 183rd commencement of Dartmouth College. "We are ready to talk with the nations on the other side of the Iron Curtain when they are ready to do so," Franks said.

Demonstrate for POWs

Koje Island, Korea, June 9 (AP)—U. S. paratroopers used flame throwers, tanks and tear gas today in a second dress rehearsal for the imminent break up of Koje's 17 prisoner of war compounds into smaller units. Sullen Communists in bloody compound 76 watched the maneuver from their barbed wire-enclosure—criss-crossed by chest-high trenches the Reds dug yesterday. Dispersal of Koje's 80,000 riotous POWs into more manageable 500-man compounds will be Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner's main blow toward gaining uncontested control over the prisoner pens. Present stockades have POW populations up to 6,000.

Can't Win, Says General

Los Angeles, June 9 (AP)—The outgoing commander of the 40th Division, Maj. Gen. Daniel H. Hudelson, told newsmen last night he doesn't see how the United Nations can win the war in Korea. "We simply don't have the manpower to stand up against the Communist hordes, even though our equipment is the best there is," he said. Gen Hudelson took California's National Guard Division overseas 21 months ago and led it into combat. He is returning home to leave the service.

More Generalists Are Needed, Says Lovett

Amherst, Mass., June 9 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett said yesterday "we must cultivate 'inquiring judgment' to counter Communist and Fascist propaganda based on emotionalism, prejudice and extremism."

Lovett spoke at the 131st commencement at Amherst College which graduated 248 seniors.

Lovett, who received an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, said that while government specialists are useful there is "a great and growing need for generalists—men who, while specialized to some degree, have a wide interest rather than a narrow one."

He declared there is a "great need for constantly increasing the competence among those who serve the government."

Seoul, Korea, June 9 (AP)—Col. Nuri Pamir, deputy commander of Turkish armed forces in the Far East, was killed Thursday by a Red mortar shell while inspecting Turk positions on the Korean front. His death was announced today by the Turkish brigade.

Red Ambassador Goes To Moscow for New Job

New York, June 9 (AP)—Alexander S. Panyushkin, Soviet ambassador to the United States since 1948, is in New York city on his way home to Moscow and a new undisclosed job.

Panyushkin arrived here yesterday with his wife and a secretary after a motor trip from Washington. He sails aboard the liner Stockholm tomorrow for Sweden.

He refused to discuss political questions on his arrival. Before he left Washington, he said:

"I have expressed my best wishes for the American people. With this expression, I should like to finish my service here."

Panyushkin is due to be replaced as ambassador by Georgi Zarubin, recently Russian envoy to London but now in Russia on leave.

Would Stay Anyhow

Vienna, Austria, June 9 (AP)—A Czech flying instructor towed a glider-borne pupil into a U. S. air base in Austria yesterday, said they were lost and not fleeing their Communist homeland, but asked for political asylum anyhow. The towing plane, a one-man sports job, was piloted by Josef Ranpak, 26, a gliding instructor of the Red-organized Bratislava Aeroclub. In the glider behind him was his pupil, Zdenek Pesl, 24, of Brno.

Hanover, N. H., June 9 (AP)—Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador to the United States, said yesterday that "it seems unlikely that for many years the world can become a comfortable place. Yet we do not believe war is inevitable." Franks spoke at the 183rd commencement of Dartmouth College. "We are ready to talk with the nations on the other side of the Iron Curtain when they are ready to do so," Franks said.

Demonstrate for POWs

Koje Island, Korea, June 9 (AP)—U. S. paratroopers used flame throwers, tanks and tear gas today in a second dress rehearsal for the imminent break up of Koje's 17 prisoner of war compounds into smaller units. Sullen Communists in bloody compound 76 watched the maneuver from their barbed wire-enclosure—criss-crossed by chest-high trenches the Reds dug yesterday. Dispersal of Koje's 80,000 riotous POWs into more manageable 500-man compounds will be Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner's main blow toward gaining uncontested control over the prisoner pens. Present stockades have POW populations up to 6,000.

Can't Win, Says General

Los Angeles, June 9 (AP)—The outgoing commander of the 40th Division, Maj. Gen. Daniel H. Hudelson, told newsmen last night he doesn't see how the United Nations can win the war in Korea. "We simply don't have the manpower to stand up against the Communist hordes, even though our equipment is the best there is," he said. Gen Hudelson took California's National Guard Division overseas 21 months ago and led it into combat. He is returning home to leave the service.

More Generalists Are Needed, Says Lovett

Amherst, Mass., June 9 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett said yesterday "we must cultivate 'inquiring judgment' to counter Communist and Fascist propaganda based on emotionalism, prejudice and extremism."

Lovett spoke at the 131st commencement at Amherst College which graduated 248 seniors.

Lovett, who received an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, said that while government specialists are useful there is "a great and growing need for generalists—men who, while specialized to some degree, have a wide interest rather than a narrow one."

He declared there is a "great need for constantly increasing the competence among those who serve the government."

Turkish Officer Killed

Seoul, Korea, June 9 (AP)—Col. Nuri Pamir, deputy commander of Turkish armed forces in the Far East, was killed Thursday by a Red mortar shell while inspecting Turk positions on the Korean front. His death was announced today by the Turkish brigade.

Red Ambassador Goes To Moscow for New Job

New York, June 9 (AP)—Alexander S. Panyushkin, Soviet ambassador to the United States since 1948, is in New York city on his way home to Moscow and a new undisclosed job.

Panyushkin arrived here yesterday with his wife and a secretary after a motor trip from Washington. He sails aboard the liner Stockholm tomorrow for Sweden.

He refused to discuss political questions on his arrival. Before he left Washington, he said:

"I have expressed my best wishes for the American people. With this expression, I should like to finish my service here."

Panyushkin is due to be replaced as ambassador by Georgi Zarubin, recently Russian envoy to London but now in Russia on leave.

Would Stay Anyhow

Vienna, Austria, June 9 (AP)—A Czech flying instructor towed a glider-borne pupil into a U. S. air base in Austria yesterday, said they were lost and not fleeing their Communist homeland, but asked for political asylum anyhow. The towing plane, a one-man sports job, was piloted by Josef Ranpak, 26, a gliding instructor of the Red-organized Bratislava Aeroclub. In the glider behind him was his pupil, Zdenek Pesl, 24, of Brno.

COOKING and BAKING DEMONSTRATION

Tuesday, June 10
2 to 4 P. M.

We are inviting the public to this demonstration — to be held in our Appliance Department. AWARDS WILL BE MADE.

Your attendance will be greatly appreciated.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of 'Etiquette,' 'Children Are People,' etc.)

UNPLEASANT FOR OTHERS.

A reader tells me: "Quite often my husband and I and fifteen-month-old son dine out. My son eats very well considering he is still a baby, but he does manage to spill some food, not only over the tablecloth, but on the floor as well. We have dined in some very fine restaurants and I was wondering if it would be proper to try to gather up some of the food after he has finished eating. I always feel guilty about leaving the place in a 'mess.'"

I'm sorry to criticize, but a child so young should not be allowed to feed himself in a restaurant. If you must take your child to eat with you, you should feed him yourself until he has learned at home to eat neatly. You leave the place as tidied as you can.

Sticky Fingers

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it ever proper to dip a corner of one's napkin into a glass of water after eating, in order to wipe the corners of one's mouth, or fingers, should they become sticky?

Answer: If there is no fingerbowl, it would be quite proper to hold the corner of your napkin in your left hand and tip your glass of water slightly over it just enough to dampen the corner, rather than dip the napkin into the glass.

Birth Announcement

Dear Mrs. Post: I am about to have my second child, and my mother-in-law says it is not proper to send out birth announcements for this child. Will you please tell me if she is correct? Also, does such an announcement obligate the receiver to send a present?

Answer: It is entirely proper to send out birth announcements for a second child. Correctly even a first birth announcement carries no obligation to send a present—and certainly not a second.

Not At Dinner

Dear Mrs. Post: In a dining room where dinner music is played by an orchestra throughout dinner, is it proper to applaud at the end of a musical selection?

Answer: It is not customary to applaud subdued music which accompanies dinner.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but perhaps one of her many leaflets will answer your question. If you are planning a surprise party, or a house warming, leaflet E-28 includes suggestions for entertainment. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

One Journey Ends, Another Begins With A Degree of Doctor

DR. ROBERT O. MOONEY

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin M. Mooney, 241 East Chester street, was graduated today from Georgetown University School of Medicine, when the degree of Doctor of Medicine was conferred on him. Dr. Mooney will serve his internship at the Queen of Angels Hospital in Los Angeles, Cal.

Dr. Mooney was graduated from Kingston High School, class of '41, and received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Bard College in 1948. Following service with the U. S. Navy, he was awarded a state scholarship, under the veteran's scholarship program in 1944, when he entered Bard College. An article by Dr. Mooney, published by the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine in 1948, won for him a place in the American Medical Journal.

His study at Georgetown included services at the Gallinger General Hospital, Washington, D. C., Prince George Hospital, Md., and Bethesda Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md.

Friends of Dr. Mooney in this city have long admired his tenacious spirit through the years while preparing for this day, and they unhesitatingly predict a prominent future for the young doctor, as he begins another purposeful journey.

A reader tells me: "Quite often my husband and I and fifteen-month-old son dine out. My son eats very well considering he is still a baby, but he does manage to spill some food, not only over the tablecloth, but on the floor as well. We have dined in some very fine restaurants and I was wondering if it would be proper to try to gather up some of the food after he has finished eating. I always feel guilty about leaving the place in a 'mess.'"

I'm sorry to criticize, but a child so young should not be allowed to feed himself in a restaurant. If you must take your child to eat with you, you should feed him yourself until he has learned at home to eat neatly. You leave the place as tidied as you can.

Sticky Fingers

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it ever proper to dip a corner of one's napkin into a glass of water after eating, in order to wipe the corners of one's mouth, or fingers, should they become sticky?

Answer: If there is no finger-bowl, it would be quite proper to hold the corner of your napkin in your left hand and tip your glass of water slightly over it just enough to dampen the corner, rather than dip the napkin into the glass.

Birth Announcement

Dear Mrs. Post: I am about to have my second child, and my mother-in-law says it is not proper to send out birth announcements for this child. Will you please tell me if she is correct? Also, does such an announcement obligate the receiver to send a present?

Answer: It is entirely proper to send out birth announcements for a second child. Correctly even a first birth announcement carries no obligation to send a present—and certainly not a second.

Not At Dinner

Dear Mrs. Post: In a dining room where dinner music is played by an orchestra throughout dinner, is it proper to applaud at the end of a musical selection?

Answer: It is not customary to applaud subdued music which accompanies dinner.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but perhaps one of her many leaflets will answer your question. Official Report Of WCTU Institute

The following is an official report of the Women's Christian Temperance Union institute held recently at the Clintondale Friends Church:

(Official Report)

The need of prayer was emphasized during the convention. New Paltz, Clintondale, Ulster Park and Milton are fruitful unions, that means that new members have been gained and high becomes their percentage on the efficiency standard. But the corresponding secretary, who keeps her eye on membership, told the institute that prayer must accompany the invitation to join. And need for prayer permeated even the demonstrations given by the guest speaker, vice-president of the New York state WCTU. Once before her voice stressing prayer in this way, had been heard in Ulster county.

As an inexperienced worker, Mrs. Hazel Wells had conducted a school of methods for WCTU workers in the Methodist Church of Highland December 3, 1940. She remembered the names of some she had met that day. Not all were living. But this second time she came with years of experience behind her, the same bubbling enthusiasm, the same vigor of expression, the same earnestness of persuasion, was personified. There is no excuse for any WCTU in Ulster county not being able to give a talk before a group of young people or even an older company.

Mrs. Wells told how she made the apparatus, the materials she used and we saw her hands move the pieces to tell the story. Her words were pictures. Vividly she drew the WCTU women of Florida studying the text books recommended to Florida educators for use in the school. We saw the women on research work as they sought for the right book that the educators would accept. We saw them carry boys and girls learning about alcohol from the New York headquarters down to Florida.

We saw the book Mrs. Brooks uses to teach facts about alcohol to children in New York city classrooms and which is now in use in the classrooms of Florida cities.

She drew pictures of the way letters and petitions influence legislation. To New York women she gave the credit for getting the right type of law for alcohol education in the state.

Mrs. Wells begged that books be studied, the Bible first of all, then books to help in the special work of the WCTU. She praised our study book for this year, Alcoholism or Abstinence, as one so appropriate for study, for school library, or town library or for one's own library.

The Union Signal and Young Crusader for young people were recommended as sources of information for those who would lead toward a knowledge of temperance.

Mrs. Wells gave the unions work to do. Each union is to build a house to show how departments are working.

The accomplishments of the director of citizenship from the rafters and scientific temperance instruction labors develop the uprights and so the departments are named and assigned to place. The house may be drawn as a picture. It may be built against an outing flannel covered board with sandpaper-backed pieces. But Mrs. Wells expects hundreds of such houses at the state convention. What nails fasten in place? Total abstinence. This year the WCTU program builds for abstinence.

Mrs. Wells believes in doing everything with a vim. So she would not let the singing drag nor lag. Up to the time that institute must sing and mean what was said by the music. How the choruses rang. There was one solo. Harold Sutton kept his promise to sing and he gave great pleasure as Mrs. Van Sicklen played the accompaniment and put his soul into the words.

Such a pretty picture was made by the array of flower-decked tables the Clintondale women had prepared to receive the box lunches. It was so relaxing for delegates to open the boxes.

In a tribute to Mrs. Bode's memory, Mrs. Wells showed her as a personal friend. Christian graces crowned her dignity and her poise and charm giving to those who knew her the secret that the bracing for her tasks came from the cultivation of the spiritual and with such women those who join the WCTU mingle as comrades.

The fire at the Iroquois theatre, Chicago, occurred during the matinee performance on Dec. 30, 1903, with a loss of 602 lives.

Immaculate Conception School Celebrates Tercentennial

Dr. Grayson L. Kirk, vice-president and acting head of the institution, presented Mr. Van Buren with the Rowe-Wiberg Medal, awarded to the senior student in the School of Dental and Oral Surgery "who has shown the greatest proficiency in prosthetic dentistry."

Find Death Story In Binder Diary

New York, June 9 (AP)—A 24-year-old former mental hospital patient, police say, killed her 58-year-old mother and then wrote about it in a diary.

The daughter, Shirley Binder, was arrested Saturday in Peekskill, N. Y., some 25 miles north of the Bronx home where her mother, Mrs. Fanny Binder, was found dead Thursday morning.

Police say Miss Binder, twice committed in recent years, wrote a graphic account of her mother's death in a typewritten, loose-leaf diary. It even told of the "fluttering" of Mrs. Binder's eyelids and of the flow of blood, police said.

Mrs. Binder was shot three times and then locked in a guest room on Wednesday, police said.

Her husband, Philip, found the body the next day.

Miss Binder was booked here on a homicide charge.

Police said she previously had been committed to a mental hospital after smashing furniture in two quarrels with her parents about her ambition to be a singer.

Cite Fire Hazard

One of the women complained that she was very nervous because she feared that flames that break out on occasion in the dump might set fire to her house.

Thomas Doyle of 61 Pine Grove avenue said that he felt the dump was a fire hazard and that he had been fighting for 20 years to eliminate it. He said that 20 years ago he had gone to Albany with a petition carrying 300 names to ask the State Board of Health to do something about it.

List of Pickets

Among those setting up the road block were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Demski; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grimaldi, 74 Pine Grove avenue; Ralph Erena, 73 Pine Grove avenue; Mrs. Ray Levine, 66 Pine Grove avenue; Mrs. W. Also present was Alderman James Ryan of the 10th Ward and Police Officers Avery and Stratton.

Ground Crews Back

New York, June 9 (AP)—American Airlines ground crews here were back at work today after a four-day wildcat sit-down strike, but it still was uncertain whether the day's 89 canceled flights would be re-scheduled. Some 1,000 members of the CIO Transport Workers Union (TWU) started to resume work yesterday at La Guardia and Idlewild airports. They had been reporting in at the fields, but refused to work. They finally returned to their jobs on the basis of an offer by the National Mediation Board to arbitrate their dispute, which stems from a travel time pay issue involving employes transferred to the two fields from closed Newark, N. J., airport.

Official Report Of WCTU Institute

The following is an official report of the Women's Christian Temperance Union institute held recently at the Clintondale Friends Church:

(Official Report)

The need of prayer was emphasized during the convention. New Paltz, Clintondale, Ulster Park and Milton are fruitful unions, that means that new members have been gained and high becomes their percentage on the efficiency standard. But the corresponding secretary, who keeps her eye on membership, told the institute that prayer must accompany the invitation to join. And need for prayer permeated even the demonstrations given by the guest speaker, vice-president of the New York state WCTU. Once before her voice stressing prayer in this way, had been heard in Ulster county.

The Union Signal and Young Crusader for young people were recommended as sources of information for those who would lead toward a knowledge of temperance.

Mrs. Wells gave the unions work to do. Each union is to build a house to show how departments are working.

The accomplishments of the director of citizenship from the rafters and scientific temperance instruction labors develop the uprights and so the departments are named and assigned to place. Yankees, Dodgers Win First Games of 1952 Little League Season

Danny Steltz Excels On Mound for Former

Little League baseball in Kingston got off to its most spectacular and auspicious start in the two-year history of the organization Saturday afternoon at the LL Stadium.

Under a warm June sky, about 1,000 spectators jammed the park on the New York State Armory grounds, Manor avenue.

It was a day to be remembered for the kids, their parents and the officials who have worked constantly to construct the stadium just for Little League baseball.

A big double-header climaxed the opening day festivities with the Yankees and Dodgers posting victories over the Red Sox and Giants respectively.

In a well-played ball game, the Yankees came from behind to score four runs in the fourth inning to nose out the Red Sox by 4-3. In the second game, the Dodgers bashed out 16 hits to trim the Giants, 19 to 4.

Steltz Wins Own Game

Young Danny Steltz, strong-armed righthander for the Yankees, won his own game in the fourth inning when he slammed a single to right to drive in Victor Locke with the winning run.

Steltz pitched a yeoman's job in registering his first victory of the season. He struck out 11 batters and gave up only three hits, all coming in the fourth inning when the Red Sox pushed over their three runs.

Richard Marcus, a southpaw, started for the Red Sox but was shelled from the hill in the fourth when the Yanks went ahead. Charlie Boice, the Socker's second baseman, relieved Marcus and was touched for a double by Henry Cherrick and the game-winning single by Steltz before he put out the fire.

A double by Tom Hallinan and singles by Tom Van Etten and Marcus featured the Red Sox rally. A couple of Yankee errors, a passed ball and stolen base helped the rally along.

Armstrong Poles Homer

Hobart Armstrong, centerfielder for the Dodgers, poled the first home run of the Little League season in the second game to pace the Dodgers to their easy victory.

Armstrong featured the 16-hit assault against the Giants with four hits in five trips. Charlie Williams and Bob Hoffman each collected three hits and Ray Reilly, Glen Newell and George Uhl stroked a pair of bingles for the winners.

The Giants, who were held to five hits by three Dodger hurlers, were led by Dave O'Connor and Pete Esposito who each poled out two hits. John Melchoir collected the fifth Giant safety.

Glen Newell, who started for the Dodgers and went four innings, got credit for the victory. Allen McCord and Tom Mayone each hurled an inning apiece for the victors.

Eight in Fifth

The Dodgers jumped off to a 4-1 lead in the first and added three in the second, one in the fourth and a big cluster of eight in the fifth. They added three more in the sixth. The Giants scored single tallies in the first and second and two in the fifth.

Timmy Fisher and John Melchoir divided the pitching chores for the Giants with Fisher being tagged with the loss.

Sub Keglerette Tops WIBC Singles With 672

St. Louis, June 9 (AP)—A pinch-hitter, Lorene (Rip) Craig of Kansas City, captured top honors in the singles division of the Women's International Bowling Congress.

The singles, doubles and Class A team events in the lengthy tournament ended yesterday.

Mrs. Craig filled in for another Kansas Citian who couldn't make the trip May 18 and rolled a 672 total. Mrs. Craig won $150.

Phyliss Notaro, Angola, N. Y., who seemed to have the winning score in hand until Mrs. Craig appeared, finished second with 666 for another $150 prize.

The top Class A team was Cole Furniture of Cleveland. The Ohio five-woman squad rolled a 2,854 score May 8 for the $500 first prize.

The doubles winners were Lorraine Quam and Martha Hoffmann of Madison, Wis., who knocked over 1,206 pins April 28, just four days after the tournament started. They split $200.

Question: The bases are loaded, none out, and the batter hits into a double play, shortstop to second to first. The runner on third scores on the play. Does the batter get credit for a run batted in?

Answer: No.

Q. How many of the Brooklyn regulars today are products of the farm system installed by Branch Rickey?

A. Only three—First Baseman Gil Hodges and Outfielders Duke Snider and Carl Furillo. Contrary to popular belief, Pee Wee Reese did not come up through the Dodger farm plan. The great shortstop was purchased from the Red Sox organization.

Q. Who was it that said: "They must be gonna fight this darned war around second base?"

A. Spencer Abbot, dean of minor league managers, said it when the army inducted his third different starting second baseman in 1942.

Q. Where did the famous phrase, "Good field, no hit," originate?

A. It came from a telegram Mike Gonzales sent John J. McGraw of the Giants in 1924, after scouting Moe Berg, then a shortstop but who later caught in the American League for 14 years.

Boulevards Score 9-1 Win Over Chez Emile

Magley, Vogt Star In First Victory

It took a couple of starts to prove it but Boulevard Gulf is definitely back in the running for the 1952 City League Baseball championship.

Given a strong pitching performance by George Magley, the Gulfmen also found their hitting eye and slammed out 11 hits in their 9 to 1 victory over Chez Emile Sunday at the Athletic Field.

The victory moved the Boulevards into a tie with Chez Emile, both clubs having won one game and dropped two.

Three fast-clicking double plays by the victors aided Magley to subdue the Chezzies without too much trouble.

Given a 4-0 cushion in the second frame, Magley was never in trouble and he went on to spin a neat four-hitter for the win.

A walk to Schryver and back to back singles by Schoonmaker and Shattan set the stage for the Boulevard's rally in the second. Bill Tierney tapped back to the box to Artie Barnes and the pitcher forced Schryver at the plate. Benjamin took Barnes' toss for the forceout and threw the ball into right field trying to double up Tierney at first. On the throwing error by the catcher, both Schoonmaker and Shattan romped in. Tierney took second on the play. While Magley was being thrown out at first, Tierney advanced to third and scored when Scheffel fumbled the ball. Lyons' one-baser rapped in Crosby with the fourth run of the frame.

A brief bit of wildness by Magley ruined his chance for a shutout in the third. After Artie Barnes singled and Norton was retired on strikes, R. Scheffel, Decker and Buddy Scheffel walked to force in Barnes. Magley got Sonny Barnes to jam into a double-play to end the inning.

A two-bagger by Magley gave the Boulevards two more in the sixth. The winners scored three more in the seventh on singles by Lyons, Al Vogt, Barringer and Shattan.

Al Vogt, outfielder for the winners, led his club at the plate with three bingles. Joe Shattan and Dan Lyons each picked up a pair of hits for the Boulevards. Slover collected two of the Chezzies' five safeties.

Randall-Heneberry Top Field In Annual Member-Guest Event

Win Playoff Match With 1-Up Score

Given an assist by the elements, which provided the first full week end of fine golfing weather, the Wiltwyck Club's third annual member-guest tournament was a resounding success. City Champion Leon Randall and his guest, Tom Heneberry, of IBM grabbed top honors on a match of cards with Bud Lenninger and Ed Remmert of Twaalfskill. The two teams tied for low net honors with 66's, and on the playoff were one up.

A record 52 teams turned out for the event which is firmly established as one of the top tournaments on the area golfing calendar. Ten teams managed to beat par, and another seven finished with even par net 70's. Until the two leaders finished, late Sunday afternoon, there was a three-way tie for first with 67. Harvey Bostic, ace of the undefeated high school team, with his brother, Charlie, as his guest fired a 67 on Saturday for the first day's lead. Early on Sunday, Bill VanAken, with Dave Boyer, of IBM, equaled the 67, as did Bill Messing and George Hughes of Twaalfskill.

The Randall and Lenninger teams, who were in a foursome, were the last group on the course, and battled down the stretch to a dead heat with their 66's. The first place tie was the second in the three-year history of the tournament, oddly enough, Ed Remmert was involved in both. This marked the second time in three years in which Remmert lost first place on a match of cards. The 1950 winners, Bob Cullum and Jim Talbot won from Remmert and "Watts" Bailey after finishing even on net score.

Randall Wins Bogie

Another record was broken when 88 entries were made in the weekend blind bogie. Leon Randall added to his loot by taking the first prize in this event also. Other winners were Roger Billings, Stan Kaplan, Floyd Flint, A. J. Anderson, Bill Messing, Dick Overbaugh, Bill VanAken, Lou Alcon, H. Barrows, A. Davis, Sr., A. B. Shufeldt, Jim Winters, Dr. Fred Holcomb, Dr. John Olivet, Gus Schrowang and Ted Young.

The Tournament Committee extended its thanks to Tom and Dee Danaher, for their usual untiring efforts at any tournament, to "Dubby" Raichle, who aided as starter, and to Charlie Meirowitz who handled refreshments.

Rawls Cops Eastern

Reading, Pa., June 9 (AP)—Betsy Rawls, Women's National Open golf champion, won her third tournament yesterday by copping the 1952 Eastern Open at the Berkshire Country Club. Her 54-hole total was 226. The Austin, Tex., pro finished two strokes ahead of Louise Suggs, of Carrolton, Ga. Third was Patty Berg, of Minneapolis with 229. Miss Berg had been an early leader in the tourney.

Boulevards Score 9-1 Win Over Chez Emile

Magley, Vogt Star In First Victory

It took a couple of starts to prove it but Boulevard Gulf is definitely back in the running for the 1952 City League Baseball championship.

Given a strong pitching performance by George Magley, the Gulfmen also found their hitting eye and slammed out 11 hits in their 9 to 1 victory over Chez Emile Sunday at the Athletic Field.

The victory moved the Boulevards into a tie with Chez Emile, both clubs having won one game and dropped two.

Three fast-clicking double plays by the victors aided Magley to subdue the Chezzies without too much trouble.

Given a 4-0 cushion in the second frame, Magley was never in trouble and he went on to spin a neat four-hitter for the win.

A walk to Schryver and back to back singles by Schoonmaker and Shattan set the stage for the Boulevard's rally in the second. Bill Tierney tapped back to the box to Artie Barnes and the pitcher forced Schryver at the plate. Benjamin took Barnes' toss for the forceout and threw the ball into right field trying to double up Tierney at first. On the throwing error by the catcher, both Schoonmaker and Shattan romped in. Tierney took second on the play. While Magley was being thrown out at first, Tierney advanced to third and scored when Scheffel fumbled the ball. Lyons' one-baser rapped in Crosby with the fourth run of the frame.

A brief bit of wildness by Magley ruined his chance for a shutout in the third. After Artie Barnes singled and Norton was retired on strikes, R. Scheffel, Decker and Buddy Scheffel walked to force in Barnes. Magley got Sonny Barnes to jam into a double-play to end the inning.

A two-bagger by Magley gave the Boulevards two more in the sixth. The winners scored three more in the seventh on singles by Lyons, Al Vogt, Barringer and Shattan.

Al Vogt, outfielder for the winners, led his club at the plate with three bingles. Joe Shattan and Dan Lyons each picked up a pair of hits for the Boulevards. Slover collected two of the Chezzies' five safeties.

Sub Keglerette Tops WIBC Singles With 672

St. Louis, June 9 (AP)—A pinch-hitter, Lorene (Rip) Craig of Kansas City, captured top honors in the singles division of the Women's International Bowling Congress.

The singles, doubles and Class A team events in the lengthy tournament ended yesterday.

Mrs. Craig filled in for another Kansas Citian who couldn't make the trip May 18 and rolled a 672 total. Mrs. Craig won $150.

Phyliss Notaro, Angola, N. Y., who seemed to have the winning score in hand until Mrs. Craig appeared, finished second with 666 for another $150 prize.

The top Class A team was Cole Furniture of Cleveland. The Ohio five-woman squad rolled a 2,854 score May 8 for the $500 first prize.

The doubles winners were Lorraine Quam and Martha Hoffmann of Madison, Wis., who knocked over 1,206 pins April 28, just four days after the tournament started. They split $200.

Question: The bases are loaded, none out, and the batter hits into a double play, shortstop to second to first. The runner on third scores on the play. Does the batter get credit for a run batted in?

Answer: No.

Q. How many of the Brooklyn regulars today are products of the farm system installed by Branch Rickey?

A. Only three—First Baseman Gil Hodges and Outfielders Duke Snider and Carl Furillo. Contrary to popular belief, Pee Wee Reese did not come up through the Dodger farm plan. The great shortstop was purchased from the Red Sox organization.

Q. Who was it that said: "They must be gonna fight this darned war around second base?"

A. Spencer Abbot, dean of minor league managers, said it when the army inducted his third different starting second baseman in 1942.

Q. Where did the famous phrase, "Good field, no hit," originate?

A. It came from a telegram Mike Gonzales sent John J. McGraw of the Giants in 1924, after scouting Moe Berg, then a shortstop but who later caught in the American League for 14 years.

Randall-Heneberry Top Field In Annual Member-Guest Event

Win Playoff Match With 1-Up Score

Given an assist by the elements, which provided the first full week end of fine golfing weather, the Wiltwyck Club's third annual member-guest tournament was a resounding success. City Champion Leon Randall and his guest, Tom Heneberry, of IBM grabbed top honors on a match of cards with Bud Lenninger and Ed Remmert of Twaalfskill. The two teams tied for low net honors with 66's, and on the playoff were one up.

A record 52 teams turned out for the event which is firmly established as one of the top tournaments on the area golfing calendar. Ten teams managed to beat par, and another seven finished with even par net 70's. Until the two leaders finished, late Sunday afternoon, there was a three-way tie for first with 67. Harvey Bostic, ace of the undefeated high school team, with his brother, Charlie, as his guest fired a 67 on Saturday for the first day's lead. Early on Sunday, Bill VanAken, with Dave Boyer, of IBM, equaled the 67, as did Bill Messing and George Hughes of Twaalfskill.

The Randall and Lenninger teams, who were in a foursome, were the last group on the course, and battled down the stretch to a dead heat with their 66's. The first place tie was the second in the three-year history of the tournament, oddly enough, Ed Remmert was involved in both. This marked the second time in three years in which Remmert lost first place on a match of cards. The 1950 winners, Bob Cullum and Jim Talbot won from Remmert and "Watts" Bailey after finishing even on net score.

Randall Wins Bogie

Another record was broken when 88 entries were made in the weekend blind bogie. Leon Randall added to his loot by taking the first prize in this event also. Other winners were Roger Billings, Stan Kaplan, Floyd Flint, A. J. Anderson, Bill Messing, Dick Overbaugh, Bill VanAken, Lou Alcon, H. Barrows, A. Davis, Sr., A. B. Shufeldt, Jim Winters, Dr. Fred Holcomb, Dr. John Olivet, Gus Schrowang and Ted Young.

The Tournament Committee extended its thanks to Tom and Dee Danaher, for their usual untiring efforts at any tournament, to "Dubby" Raichle, who aided as starter, and to Charlie Meirowitz who handled refreshments.

The leading scores:

Leon Randall-Tom Heneberry (IBM)	33-33, 66

YANKEE YEARLING—Marv Throneberry, brother of the Red Sox' Faye, bends an ear to some advice from Casey Stengel before taking batting practice at Yankee Stadium. The 19-year-old first sacker from Memphis was signed by the World Champions for a $50,000 bonus. (NEA)

New York, June 9 (AP)—Leaders of the left-wing American Labor party have selected Corliss Lamont, whose father was a partner of multi-millionaire J. P. Morgan, to run for the U. S. Senate.

Lamont, 50, a teacher of philosophy at Columbia University, yesterday received the unanimous recommendation of the party's executive committee.

Former Rep. Vito Marcantonio, ALP state chairman, said Lamont was willing to accept.

The nominating convention of the ALP, which is the nominal arm of the Progressive party in New York state, is to be held Aug. 28.

Sets New Track Record

Milwaukee, June 9 (AP)—Mike Mazaruk, Hempstead, N. Y., set a new track record as he won the 100-mile big car race at Wisconsin State Fair Park before 26,132 spectators yesterday. The race was marred by the death of veteran driver Johnny McDowell, 37, Venice, Calif., who was killed when the front right wheel of his car collapsed during a time trial before the race. The big car spun off a turn and he was thrown from the racer. Mazaruk completed the 100 miles with a mark of 91.35 miles an hour, besting last year's record of 88.4 set by Tommy Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill.

He weighed 326 pounds.

The SCOREBoard

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Oh, those bases on balls!

Boston's Red Sox were the new occupants of first place in the American League today. The New York Yankees jumped from third to second and Cleveland plummeted from first to third. All three clubs could charge it to the pitchers' pet peeve—the free ticket to first.

Because of the walks, only three percentage points separated the three teams after Sunday's activities, which saw the Red Sox sweep a pair from Detroit by 5-2 margins; the Yankees take two from the St. Louis Browns, 5-2 and 3-0, and the Indians drop two to the Philadelphia Athletics, 12-4, and 11-3.

As a result, here's how the standings look today:

	W	L	Pct.	GB
Boston	28	20	.583	..
New York	25	18	.581	½
Cleveland	29	21	.580	..

Sam Jones, Cleveland right-hander, started the day's "walkathon" by passing Elmer Valo with the bases loaded in the first inning at Philadelphia to force home the A's first run. In all, Jones walked five in two innings. Teammate Bobby Feller did even worse in the second game, walking seven in the first frame as the A's buzzed into a 5-0 lead.

Joost Has Big Day

Eddie Joost, veteran shortstop, was the big gun for the A's, smashing two home runs in the first game to make Bobby Shantz' 10th victory—he's the first big league hurler to get that many—an easy one.

At Yankee Stadium, Tommy Byrne, Brownie lefthander, gave up only two hits in the first game but lost when three of seven walks came in to score. Reliever Bob Kuzava tossed six-hit ball for nine innings to win.

In the nightcap, another St. Louis southpaw, Stubby Overmire, gave up only two walks, but one of those was turned into one of the Yanks' three runs. Overmire ran into a tough opponent, however, as righthander Vic Raschi fanned 13 in racking up his fifth victory for the champs.

Kell, Trout Spark Bosox

At Boston, George Kell and Dizzy Trout, both ex-Tigers, sparked the Red Sox to their double triumph over their former teammates. Kell pounded out five hits, driving in two runs, while the veteran Trout made his first start for the Sox in the second game and pitched a six-hitter.

In the other American League game, Nellie Fox, with three hits, led Chicago to a 6-3 victory over Washington. It was Washington's fourth straight loss and dropped the senators into fourth place, one point ahead of the White Sox.

Meanwhile, in the National League, Brooklyn continued to build up its lead by sweeping a doubleheader from Cincinnati, 11-7 and 10-4. It gave the Brooks a 4½-game bulge on the New York Giants, who trounced Pittsburgh, 9-1, behind Larry Jansen's seven-hitter and home runs by Al Dark and Bob Elliott.

Brooklyn won the first game against Cincinnati easy enough, scoring four times in the first inning and adding four more in the fifth. But it took a seven-run rally, featured by Carl Furillo's grand-slam homer, to pull out the nightcap.

The St. Louis Cards moved past Cincinnati into fourth place by trimming the Philadelphia Phils, 5-3, despite homers by Del Ennis, Granny Hamner and Connie Ryan. Stan Musial clubbed a three-run homer for the 'Birds in the first inning to give rookie Willard Schmidt his first major league victory.

At Chicago, the Cubs split with the Boston Braves, winning the opener, 7-5, as Hank Sauer hit his 14th homer, but losing the second, 7-6, when Sam Jethroe poled a home run with the bases full.

Heavy Hitter

The all-time record for runs batted in in the major leagues of baseball is held by Hack Wilson who, in 1930, batted in 190 runs while with the Chicago Cubs.

New York, June 9 (AP)—Leaders of the left-wing American Labor party have selected Corliss Lamont, whose father was a partner of multi-millionaire J. P. Morgan, to run for the U. S. Senate.

Lamont, 50, a teacher of philosophy at Columbia University, yesterday received the unanimous recommendation of the party's executive committee.

Former Rep. Vito Marcantonio, ALP state chairman, said Lamont was willing to accept.

The nominating convention of the ALP, which is the nominal arm of the Progressive party in New York state, is to be held Aug. 28.

New Red Plan

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, June 9 (AP)—Yugoslav papers report new Russian moves to tightly integrate the armed forces of the Soviet's satellites and standardize their arms and training. The Soviet aim is to counter the drive toward unified defense on the western side of the Iron Curtain, said the news agency Yugopress.

Sets New Track Record

Milwaukee, June 9 (AP)—Mike Mazaruk, Hempstead, N. Y., set a new track record as he won the 100-mile big car race at Wisconsin State Fair Park before 26,132 spectators yesterday. The race was marred by the death of veteran driver Johnny McDowell, 37, Venice, Calif., who was killed when the front right wheel of his car collapsed during a time trial before the race. The big car spun off a turn and he was thrown from the racer. Mazaruk completed the 100 miles with a mark of 91.35 miles an hour, besting last year's record of 88.4 set by Tommy Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill.

He weighed 326 pounds.

The SCOREBoard

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Oh, those bases on balls!

Boston's Red Sox were the new occupants of first place in the American League today. The New York Yankees jumped from third to second and Cleveland plummeted from first to third. All three clubs could charge it to the pitchers' pet peeve—the free ticket to first.

Because of the walks, only three percentage points separated the three teams after Sunday's activities, which saw the Red Sox sweep a pair from Detroit by 5-2 margins; the Yankees take two from the St. Louis Browns, 5-2 and 3-0, and the Indians drop two to the Philadelphia Athletics, 12-4, and 11-3.

As a result, here's how the standings look today:

	W	L	Pct.	GB
Boston	28	20	.583	..
New York	25	18	.581	½
Cleveland	29	21	.580	..

Sam Jones, Cleveland right-hander, started the day's "walkathon" by passing Elmer Valo with the bases loaded in the first inning at Philadelphia to force home the A's first run. In all, Jones walked five in two innings. Teammate Bobby Feller did even worse in the second game, walking seven in the first frame as the A's buzzed into a 5-0 lead.

Joost Has Big Day

Eddie Joost, veteran shortstop, was the big gun for the A's, smashing two home runs in the first game to make Bobby Shantz' 10th victory—he's the first big league hurler to get that many—an easy one.

At Yankee Stadium, Tommy Byrne, Brownie lefthander, gave up only two hits in the first game but lost when three of seven walks came in to score. Reliever Bob Kuzava tossed six-hit ball for nine innings to win.

In the nightcap, another St. Louis southpaw, Stubby Overmire, gave up only two walks, but one of those was turned into one of the Yanks' three runs. Overmire ran into a tough opponent, however, as righthander Vic Raschi fanned 13 in racking up his fifth victory for the champs.

Kell, Trout Spark Bosox

At Boston, George Kell and Dizzy Trout, both ex-Tigers, sparked the Red Sox to their double triumph over their former teammates. Kell pounded out five hits, driving in two runs, while the veteran Trout made his first start for the Sox in the second game and pitched a six-hitter.

In the other American League game, Nellie Fox, with three hits, led Chicago to a 6-3 victory over Washington. It was Washington's fourth straight loss and dropped the senators into fourth place, one point ahead of the White Sox.

Meanwhile, in the National League, Brooklyn continued to build up its lead by sweeping a doubleheader from Cincinnati, 11-7 and 10-4. It gave the Brooks a 4½-game bulge on the New York Giants, who trounced Pittsburgh, 9-1, behind Larry Jansen's seven-hitter and home runs by Al Dark and Bob Elliott.

Brooklyn won the first game against Cincinnati easy enough, scoring four times in the first inning and adding four more in the fifth. But it took a seven-run rally, featured by Carl Furillo's grand-slam homer, to pull out the nightcap.

The St. Louis Cards moved past Cincinnati into fourth place by trimming the Philadelphia Phils, 5-3, despite homers by Del Ennis, Granny Hamner and Connie Ryan. Stan Musial clubbed a three-run homer for the 'Birds in the first inning to give rookie Willard Schmidt his first major league victory.

At Chicago, the Cubs split with the Boston Braves, winning the opener, 7-5, as Hank Sauer hit his 14th homer, but losing the second, 7-6, when Sam Jethroe poled a home run with the bases full.

Heavy Hitter

The all-time record for runs batted in in the major leagues of baseball is held by Hack Wilson who, in 1930, batted in 190 runs while with the Chicago Cubs.

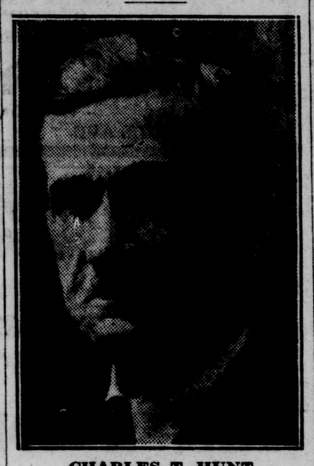
Circus Day Brings Native Son Back With Top Features



CHARLES T. HUNT

This is circus day in Kingston.

Vanguards of Hunt Brothers Circus began arriving in Kingston Sunday morning for the two big shows in the city this afternoon and tonight.

Tonight's performance at the municipal stadium show grounds starts at 8 o'clock.

The arrival of Hunt's Circus in the city Sunday means more than just a circus in town. It means the renewal of many friendships of an old Kingston resident, Charles T. Hunt, who left Kingston about 60 years ago to make his name known in the circus business.

Talking with friends at the uptown show grounds Sunday after the many circus cars began arriving, Hunt said he was glad to be back in his old home town and promised that his three sons, Charles, Jr., Harry and Eddie, had a full program for presentation at both performances today.

Sponsored by Legion

Today's double performance program is being sponsored by Kingston Post, 150, American Legion, and marks the first time in the history of Hunt's appearing in the city that the circus has ever been sponsored by a local organization.

Veteran circus enthusiasts rate Hunt's one of the largest truck shows in the business today.

The show features a herd of performing elephants, well-knwon bareback riders, wire-walkers, acrobats, tumblers, trainers of horses, seals, dogs and other circus animals. The ever-present clowns with special features for the children also are on the program.

Hunt, who will celebrate his 79th birthday in August, joined the Great P. T. Barnum Circus at the age of 12, playing with the Rivers Troupe. Seven years later he left this group to start out on his own.

From a humble beginning, Hunt ran his show into a three-ring affair. He retired from the real active part of the circus in 1942 and turned it over to his three sons. Hunt still travels with his sons in an advisory capacity, however.

Jersey City, N. J., June 9 (AP)—Sen. Richard B. Russell paid a flying visit to this stronghold of the New Jersey Democratic party today in the hopes of picking up some convention votes in his bid for the presidential nomination. The Georgia Democrat dropped in at the office of former Democratic Governor A. Harry Moore, then went on to city hall to confer with Mayor John V. Kenny.

Firemen Extinguish Two Car Fires Sunday

The Kingston Fire Department received two calls early Sunday afternoon, both for car fires.

At 1:10 p. m. fire broke out in a 1941 sedan owned by Edward Dermody of 13 DuBois street, when a backfire in the carburetor ignited gasoline. Engine No. 2 from Cornell answered the call.

At 1:34 p. m. a car owned by Robert Edward Symington and occupied by him as living quarters, caught fire at the Strand and Broadway when Symington fell asleep and his lighted cigarette fell into a pile of blankets and combustible materials, the Fire Department reported.

The fire was discovered by Warren Gordon of the Gordon Hotel who aroused Symington and assisted him from the car. Answering the call were Engine No. 1 from Central, No. 2 from Cornell, Truck No. 1 from Central and equipment from Union and Rapid Hose. Flames were brought under control by a two and a half gallon chemical extinguisher.

Fleischmanns Store Fire on Saturday

A fire which broke out late Saturday morning in the heart of Fleischmanns' business section was confined to the top floor of the three-story Steinhardt Furniture Company building, it was learned today.

Fire companies from neighboring Margaretville and Pine Hill were summoned as a precaution in case stiff winds spread flames to other buildings in the built up area. A Pine Hill fire company member said today that the fire was brought under control by noon and was confined to the attic. Some water damage was reported in the lower floors of the building.

Report 'Wonder Metal'

London, June 9 (AP)—The Sunday Chronicle says British scientists have developed a revolutionary new metal insulation against atomic radiation and have conquered the major obstacle preventing construction of atomic-powered airplanes. A spokesman for the Ministry of Supply, which controls the government's secrecy-cloaked atomic program, said it knew nothing of such a new "wonder metal," nor could other sources confirm the report.

Grotewohl Returns

Berlin, June 9 (AP)—East Germany's prime minister, Otto Grotewohl, returned from a mysterious absence today and made his first public appearance here in three weeks. The Communist news agency ADN said Grotewohl attended a "congress of creative artists" meeting in Berlin's east sector. It reported his re-appearance without even commenting that he had been away. There has been speculation that the prime minister has been sick.

Spivey Arrested

New York, June 9 (AP)—Bill Spivey, former All-America basketball star at the University of Kehtucky, was arrested today on a perjury charge in the basketball fix scandal. He was booked on on indictment handed up April 28 and was to be arraigned later today in General Sessions Court.

OLD ROCKIN' CHAIR'S GOT HER—Relaxing from the hectic activity of the past few weeks, Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower enjoys the old-fashioned comfort of an heirloom rocking chair in the boyhood home of General Eisenhower, in Abilene, Kan. "This is the most peaceful seat I've had since Ike and I started the rounds of farewell over at NATO," she said.

Restrictions Cut

granted easier terms to servicemen able to get mortgages guaranteed by the VA. This was in line with provisions of the Defense Production Act granting preferential treatment to veterans.

No down payments will be required on veterans housing costing $7,000 or less although closing—or settlement—costs must be paid in cash.

The down payment for houses costing $25,000 or more and financed with a VA mortgage will be 35 per cent compared with the previous top of 45 per cent.

The easier terms apply to credit on houses for one to four families and apartment houses. No change was made in controls affecting non-residential properties, but the board said such a change is "still under consideration."

For apartment houses containing more than four family units, down payments will now range from 10 to 40 per cent against the previous schedule of 17 to 50 per cent.

Kaplan to Resign

Albany, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—H. Eliot Kaplan of Larchmont, a deputy state comptroller and head of the state employes retirement system for 3½ years, will resign July 5 to return to private law practice. State Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern, who announced the resignation today, said Kaplan would specialize as a consultant in public and industrial pension administration. No successor was named immediately to the $13,500 a year post.

Bleecker Elected

Monticello, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—Louis K. Bleecker today was elected national president of Bnai Zion, a fraternal organization, at the group's annual convention here. Bleecker, a resident of Long Beach, N. Y., has long been active in Jewish charitable work. He succeeds Dr. Jacob I. Steinberg, of the Bronx, who was named treasurer. More than 500 delegates attended the three-day convention at Kutsher's Country Club.

Steel Strike

improved vacation, shift and holiday arrangements.

Such a deal would vary somewhat from settlement recommendations made by the Wage Stabilization Board (WSB) several months ago.

The WSB recommended a 12½-cent pay increase effective last January, with 2½-cent added increases this July 1 and next January 1. The 16-cent straight increase for the life of the contract would run about the same as the WSB's three-stop proposal. The WSB also recommended a union shop.

Bargain 4½ Hours

Negotiations at the White House yesterday ran 4½ hours of steady bargaining. It was decided to pass up a meeting this morning to let both sides prepare for today's mid-afternoon "crucial" sesion. Both of the three-man negotiating teams had to clear the situation with other officials on their side and get approval for posible final commitments.

The fact that the negotiators skipped a morning session was regarded as a good omen rather than a bad one. But it was emphasized by those close to the situation that all the talks have been made with the understanding that tentative agreements could be junked if no final deal is possible.

The strike, which affected more than 650,000 steelworkers and more than 100,000 other workers in allied rail, coal and shipping industries, was costing the country more than 250,000 tons of steel daily.

In an effort to ease the impact on defense production, the government yesterday directed that top-priority defense orders be sent to non-struck plants. The National Production Authority (NPA) said approximately 30 steel companies were still in operation. They produce about 12½ per cent of the nation's normal steel output.

Schneider's Announce Winners of Watches

Donald Wright of Tillson and Miss Addie Rion of 79 Chambers street were the winners of Bulova wrist watches offered by Schneider's Jewelers, the company announced today. Both winners are members of the 1952 graduating class at Kingston High School. Names of all senior class members at the high school and the Academy of St. Ursula were placed on the face of a clock, which was wound and allowed to run down. The names to which the hands pointed when the clock stopped were declared the winners of the watches.

Rain Ends Hot Spell In Eastern Areas

(By The Associated Press)

Thunderstorms and showers hit areas in the eastern half of the nation today, ending the season's first spell of hot weather.

Damaging storms which struck wide areas in the midwest and east yesterday caused at least eight deaths and heavy property damage. Five deaths attributed to wind, electrical and rain storms were reported in Illinois and three in Erie, Pa.

Heavy rain hit sections of Illinois, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Warm weather continued in the southern states and along the Atlantic coast. It was hot again today in the far southwest.

Bright Hopes for Taft

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 9 (AP)—Senator Rabert A. Taft of Ohio got 613 more votes than Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in last Tuesday's South Dakota presidential primary, a county canvass showed Saturday. A state canvass, probably late this week, could alter the totals, reported as 64,617 for Taft and 64,004 for Eisenhower. If the state canvass confirms the county totals, Taft can officially pocket all 14 of South Dakota's delegates to the national GOP convention next month.

Arrested on Warrant After His Release

James Robert Foster, 25, who gave his home address as 239 West 135th street, New York, was arrested on a bench warrant Saturday on his release from the Napanoch Institution.

The warrant was issued by County Judge John M. Cashin following the handing down of a sealed indictment by the grand jury charging Foster with second degree burglary and unlawful entry, allegedly committed in this county about two years ago after Foster escaped from detention at Woodbourne, according to District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn. He had been apprehended and was transfered to Napanoch, where the warrant was served on him Saturday by Under Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg and County Investigator Arthur H. Brown.

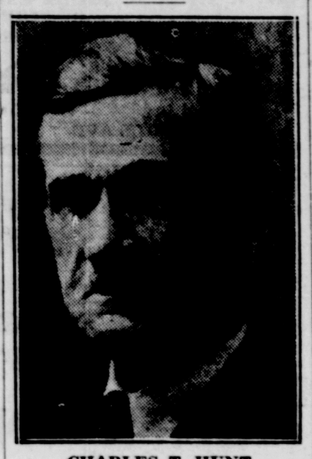
Circus Day Brings Native Son Back With Top Features



CHARLES T. HUNT

This is circus day in Kingston.

Vanguards of Hunt Brothers Circus began arriving in Kingston Sunday morning for the two big shows in the city this afternoon and tonight.

Tonight's performance at the municipal stadium show grounds starts at 8 o'clock.

The arrival of Hunt's Circus in the city Sunday means more than just a circus in town. It means the renewal of many friendships of an old Kingston resident, Charles T. Hunt, who left Kingston about 60 years ago to make his name known in the circus business.

Talking with friends at the uptown show grounds Sunday after the many circus cars began arriving, Hunt said he was glad to be back in his old home town and promised that his three sons, Charles, Jr., Harry and Eddie, had a full program for presentation at both performances today.

Sponsored by Legion

Today's double performance program is being sponsored by Kingston Post, 150, American Legion, and marks the first time in the history of Hunt's appearing in the city that the circus has ever been sponsored by a local organization.

Veteran circus enthusiasts rate Hunt's one of the largest truck shows in the business today.

The show features a herd of performing elephants, well-knwon bareback riders, wire-walkers, acrobats, tumblers, trainers of horses, seals, dogs and other circus animals. The ever-present clowns with special features for the children also are on the program.

Hunt, who will celebrate his 79th birthday in August, joined the Great P. T. Barnum Circus at the age of 12, playing with the Rivers Troupe. Seven years later he left this group to start out on his own.

From a humble beginning, Hunt ran his show into a three-ring affair. He retired from the real active part of the circus in 1942 and turned it over to his three sons. Hunt still travels with his sons in an advisory capacity, however.

Jersey City, N. J., June 9 (AP)—Sen. Richard B. Russell paid a flying visit to this stronghold of the New Jersey Democratic party today in the hopes of picking up some convention votes in his bid for the presidential nomination. The Georgia Democrat dropped in at the office of former Democratic Governor A. Harry Moore, then went on to city hall to confer with Mayor John V. Kenny.

Firemen Extinguish Two Car Fires Sunday

The Kingston Fire Department received two calls early Sunday afternoon, both for car fires.

At 1:10 p. m. fire broke out in a 1941 sedan owned by Edward Dermody of 13 DuBois street, when a backfire in the carburetor ignited gasoline. Engine No. 2 from Cornell answered the call.

At 1:34 p. m. a car owned by Robert Edward Symington and occupied by him as living quarters, caught fire at the Strand and Broadway when Symington fell asleep and his lighted cigarette fell into a pile of blankets and combustible materials, the Fire Department reported.

The fire was discovered by Warren Gordon of the Gordon Hotel who aroused Symington and assisted him from the car. Answering the call were Engine No. 1 from Central, No. 2 from Cornell, Truck No. 1 from Central and equipment from Union and Rapid Hose. Flames were brought under control by a two and a half gallon chemical extinguisher.

Fleischmanns Store Fire on Saturday

A fire which broke out late Saturday morning in the heart of Fleischmanns' business section was confined to the top floor of the three-story Steinhardt Furniture Company building, it was learned today.

Fire companies from neighboring Margaretville and Pine Hill were summoned as a precaution in case stiff winds spread flames to other buildings in the built up area. A Pine Hill fire company member said today that the fire was brought under control by noon and was confined to the attic. Some water damage was reported in the lower floors of the building.

Report 'Wonder Metal'

London, June 9 (AP)—The Sunday Chronicle says British scientists have developed a revolutionary new metal insulation against atomic radiation and have conquered the major obstacle preventing construction of atomic-powered airplanes. A spokesman for the Ministry of Supply, which controls the government's secrecy-cloaked atomic program, said it knew nothing of such a new "wonder metal," nor could other sources confirm the report.

Grotewohl Returns

Berlin, June 9 (AP)—East Germany's prime minister, Otto Grotewohl, returned from a mysterious absence today and made his first public appearance here in three weeks. The Communist news agency ADN said Grotewohl attended a "congress of creative artists" meeting in Berlin's east sector. It reported his re-appearance without even commenting that he had been away. There has been speculation that the prime minister has been sick.

Spivey Arrested

New York, June 9 (AP)—Bill Spivey, former All-America basketball star at the University of Kehtucky, was arrested today on a perjury charge in the basketball fix scandal. He was booked on on indictment handed up April 28 and was to be arraigned later today in General Sessions Court.

OLD ROCKIN' CHAIR'S GOT HER—Relaxing from the hectic activity of the past few weeks, Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower enjoys the old-fashioned comfort of an heirloom rocking chair in the boyhood home of General Eisenhower, in Abilene, Kan. "This is the most peaceful seat I've had since Ike and I started the rounds of farewell over at NATO," she said.

Restrictions Cut

granted easier terms to servicemen able to get mortgages guaranteed by the VA. This was in line with provisions of the Defense Production Act granting preferential treatment to veterans.

No down payments will be required on veterans housing costing $7,000 or less although closing—or settlement—costs must be paid in cash.

The down payment for houses costing $25,000 or more and financed with a VA mortgage will be 35 per cent compared with the previous top of 45 per cent.

The easier terms apply to credit on houses for one to four families and apartment houses. No change was made in controls affecting non-residential properties, but the board said such a change is "still under consideration."

For apartment houses containing more than four family units, down payments will now range from 10 to 40 per cent against the previous schedule of 17 to 50 per cent.

Kaplan to Resign

Albany, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—H. Eliot Kaplan of Larchmont, a deputy state comptroller and head of the state employes retirement system for 3½ years, will resign July 5 to return to private law practice. State Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern, who announced the resignation today, said Kaplan would specialize as a consultant in public and industrial pension administration. No successor was named immediately to the $13,500 a year post.

Bleecker Elected

Monticello, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—Louis K. Bleecker today was elected national president of Bnai Zion, a fraternal organization, at the group's annual convention here. Bleecker, a resident of Long Beach, N. Y., has long been active in Jewish charitable work. He succeeds Dr. Jacob I. Steinberg, of the Bronx, who was named treasurer. More than 500 delegates attended the three-day convention at Kutsher's Country Club.

Steel Strike

improved vacation, shift and holiday arrangements.

Such a deal would vary somewhat from settlement recommendations made by the Wage Stabilization Board (WSB) several months ago.

The WSB recommended a 12½-cent pay increase effective last January, with 2½-cent added increases this July 1 and next January 1. The 16-cent straight increase for the life of the contract would run about the same as the WSB's three-stop proposal. The WSB also recommended a union shop.

Bargain 4½ Hours

Negotiations at the White House yesterday ran 4½ hours of steady bargaining. It was decided to pass up a meeting this morning to let both sides prepare for today's mid-afternoon "crucial" sesion. Both of the three-man negotiating teams had to clear the situation with other officials on their side and get approval for posible final commitments.

The fact that the negotiators skipped a morning session was regarded as a good omen rather than a bad one. But it was emphasized by those close to the situation that all the talks have been made with the understanding that tentative agreements could be junked if no final deal is possible.

The strike, which affected more than 650,000 steelworkers and more than 100,000 other workers in allied rail, coal and shipping industries, was costing the country more than 250,000 tons of steel daily.

In an effort to ease the impact on defense production, the government yesterday directed that top-priority defense orders be sent to non-struck plants. The National Production Authority (NPA) said approximately 30 steel companies were still in operation. They produce about 12½ per cent of the nation's normal steel output.

Rain Ends Hot Spell In Eastern Areas

(By The Associated Press)

Thunderstorms and showers hit areas in the eastern half of the nation today, ending the season's first spell of hot weather.

Damaging storms which struck wide areas in the midwest and east yesterday caused at least eight deaths and heavy property damage. Five deaths attributed to wind, electrical and rain storms were reported in Illinois and three in Erie, Pa.

Heavy rain hit sections of Illinois, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Warm weather continued in the southern states and along the Atlantic coast. It was hot again today in the far southwest.

Bright Hopes for Taft

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 9 (AP)—Senator Rabert A. Taft of Ohio got 613 more votes than Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in last Tuesday's South Dakota presidential primary, a county canvass showed Saturday. A state canvass, probably late this week, could alter the totals, reported as 64,617 for Taft and 64,004 for Eisenhower. If the state canvass confirms the county totals, Taft can officially pocket all 14 of South Dakota's delegates to the national GOP convention next month.

Arrested on Warrant After His Release

James Robert Foster, 25, who gave his home address as 239 West 135th street, New York, was arrested on a bench warrant Saturday on his release from the Napanoch Institution.

The warrant was issued by County Judge John M. Cashin following the handing down of a sealed indictment by the grand jury charging Foster with second degree burglary and unlawful entry, allegedly committed in this county about two years ago after Foster escaped from detention at Woodbourne, according to District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn. He had been apprehended and was transfered to Napanoch, where the warrant was served on him Saturday by Under Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg and County Investigator Arthur H. Brown.

Urge End of Political Squabbles to Aid Korea

Pusan, Korea, June 9 (AP)—The United Nations has urged the South Korean government to halt its political squabblings for 10 days to ease tension the UN said is threatening the republic with chaos.

The UN proposal was handed the government last night. It also suggested that President Syngman Rhee lift martial law from this temporary capital and release 11 National assemblymen held on charges of conspiracy against the government.

Rhee is demanding that the right to elect the President be taken from the assembly and given to the people. He also wants a two-hour Congress instead of the present unicameral assembly.

Reports on Air Force

Washington, June 9 (AP)—Secretary Finletter says the air force can buy three years time and meet "the capabilities of certain foreign countries" in 1954 with 2½ to 3½ billion dollars more than it is presently scheduled to get. Right now, Finletter said, the United States is much better off in bombers than Russia, but Russia has more fighters and her MIG-15 has some advantages over the U. S. F-86 Sabre jet fighter. Finletter spoke in an interview transcribed for broadcast last night by the Gannett News Service.

To Check on Drivers

Albany, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—The New York State Sheriffs Association today opened a campaign to snare unlicensed drivers in a chain of mobile roadblocks. Louis R. Yaguda, executive secretary of the association, urged the county officers to check licenses from now through June 30. He said roadblocks could be operated on a part-time basis for short periods. Citing the unlicensed driver as probably unsafe and uninsured, Yaguda said the association hoped the roadblocks would help cut the holiday toll of accidents over the Fourth of July weekend.

The Band Played 'Lover Come Back to Me'

The Navy band played, "Lover Come Back To Me," at Annapolis, Md., as these U.S. Naval Academy midshipmen kissed their girls goodbye. Filing aboard a 19-ship squadron, they headed for an eight-week summer practice cruise through European and Caribbean waters. There's an audience for the tender farewells, too, aboard these destroyers (left to right), the Putnam, Storms and William Keith. (AP Wirephoto).

Urge End of Political Squabbles to Aid Korea

Pusan, Korea, June 9 (AP)—The United Nations has urged the South Korean government to halt its political squabblings for 10 days to ease tension the UN said is threatening the republic with chaos.

The UN proposal was handed the government last night. It also suggested that President Syngman Rhee lift martial law from this temporary capital and release 11 National assemblymen held on charges of conspiracy against the government.

Rhee is demanding that the right to elect the President be taken from the assembly and given to the people. He also wants a two-hour Congress instead of the present unicameral assembly.

Reports on Air Force

Washington, June 9 (AP)—Secretary Finletter says the air force can buy three years time and meet "the capabilities of certain foreign countries" in 1954 with 2½ to 3½ billion dollars more than it is presently scheduled to get. Right now, Finletter said, the United States is much better off in bombers than Russia, but Russia has more fighters and her MIG-15 has some advantages over the U. S. F-86 Sabre jet fighter. Finletter spoke in an interview transcribed for broadcast last night by the Gannett News Service.

To Check on Drivers

Albany, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—The New York State Sheriffs Association today opened a campaign to snare unlicensed drivers in a chain of mobile roadblocks. Louis R. Yaguda, executive secretary of the association, urged the county officers to check licenses from now through June 30. He said roadblocks could be operated on a part-time basis for short periods. Citing the unlicensed driver as probably unsafe and uninsured, Yaguda said the association hoped the roadblocks would help cut the holiday toll of accidents over the Fourth of July weekend.
